

our Nation from any potential attacks on U.S. soil. It is also the only binational command in the world's existence between Canada and the United States.

During his tenure there, Admiral Gortney redefined the mission for USNORTHCOM's future, furthering the bonds that have secured the skies above the homelands for 60 years. He built a personal trust critical to the strength of the alliance with our partners in Canada, Mexico, and the Bahamas and was able to expand the traditional bounds of security cooperation. He increased military-to-military training and interaction. Within the homeland, Admiral Gortney's keen intuition led to a deliberate campaign plan to protect the United States forces from the threat of homegrown violent extremists. He led the Department of Defense planning to support lead Federal agencies to minimize the threat of both the Ebola and Zika viruses.

Throughout his career, Admiral Gortney's message of empowerment and his relentless desire to seek creative solutions to the commands' challenges has served as an example to all during his lifetime exemplary of military service. I join with the members of the Senate Armed Services Committee in expressing my respect and gratitude to Admiral Gortney for his outstanding service to our Nation. I offer heartfelt thanks to Bill; his wife, Sherry; their children, Stephanie and Billy; daughter-in-law, Jackie; and grandchildren, Gavin and Grayson. Congratulations to all on Bill's retirement from the U.S. Navy after a lifetime of dedicated service. To Bill, trusted leader and dedicated patriot, fair winds and following seas.

90TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE TRIANGLE X RANCH

Mr. ENZI. Mr. President, I appreciate having this opportunity to share some news with the Senate about a very important anniversary we are celebrating in my home State. This is the year the Triangle X Ranch, one of our State's great attractions, is marking its 90th year of operation.

As you can imagine, the Triangle X has quite a story to tell of those 90 years. It began in the early 1900s when a visitor fell in love with an especially beautiful area of Wyoming. It continues to this day, its 90th year, cared for over the years by five generations of the Turner family.

The people of my home State have a great fondness and appreciation for the Triangle X because it reminds us of our Western heritage and our love of the land and all it provides. It reminds us of our growth as a State and what it was like to live in Wyoming back in those days.

The Triangle X Ranch Web site tells the story of the ranch. It begins, back in the early 1900s, when John and Maytie Turner liked to take "fun vacations," as they called them, to Yellowstone National Park. It was during one of those visits they had a chance to see an area around Jackson Hole for the first time. It was one of those story-book encounters—or to put it another way: love at first sight.

Life was a lot tougher back then, so when they decided to make the area their home, they had to bring their sons back with them to get things started. It took a tremendous effort to build their home so they would have a place to stay. Even today, it is hard to imagine what an effort it took for them to live what had become their dream.

For starters, they had to bring the logs from some felled trees to their home site so they could build the basement of what would become their home. Once that was done, they had a place where they could live while they built the rest of their house.

Everything was difficult. Providing for the essentials they needed took planning and some time. Just taking a trip to the nearest town took several days. They had to grow or produce their own food, and while they were at it, they had to come up with ways of making something of a living.

This paragraph from the history section of their Web site says a lot about what their life was like back then for them and for many of those who had left the comforts of home and traded them for the great freedom and excitement of Wyoming and the West: "Because there was no electricity, wood supplied heat and kerosene lamps brought light to interiors. Refrigeration was provided by large chunks of ice that had been cut from nearby beaver ponds in the winter and stored in piles of sawdust to keep through the summer. A fresh meat supply was provided by the Turners' cattle herd, chickens and big game harvested in the fall. Surprisingly, most of these methods of supply continued through the 1940s."

The next generation saw more changes to the ranch. It was now a dude ranch. Their Web site describes how it became an "authorized concession of the National Park Service—the last dude ranch concession within the entire National Park system."

Today, a fifth generation of the Turner family is working the ranch and greeting guests, both new and returning friends, the lifestyle their family has loved for all these years. As each guest comes to the Triangle X, they receive the kind of education you just can't get from watching a movie or reading a book. You are immersed in a lifestyle that provides you with a front row seat to what life was like in the days of the old West.

As you can tell, I enjoy talking about the people of Wyoming, our businesses, and our unique brand of hospitality. I can't encourage you strongly enough to come to Wyoming and get a taste of what life was like back in the days when the West was the best part of our national heritage—and you will see that it still is. When you come to my home State, you might stop by the Triangle X and then explore some more of Wyoming and the West.

Our homegrown businesses are one of the special things about Wyoming. Together, they form the backbone of Wyoming's economy and they keep us headed in the right direction. They are the strength of Wyoming and the West, and they are one of the reasons why people keep flocking to Jackson and the other cities and towns of Wyoming.

I will close by once again congratulating all those who are a part of the Triangle X story. They have made a difference in our State and in the lives of all those who come to visit. I would also like to invite my colleagues to come and see my home State. You can't beat our scenic beauty, hospitality, and our history and legacy as a State. I can promise you that you will have an adventure in Wyoming that you will remember for a long time to come.

Thank you.

PEASE GREETERS' 1000TH FLIGHT

• Ms. AYOTTE. Mr. President, today I wish to recognize and congratulate the Pease Greeters' nonprofit organization for more than 11 years of continuous service in greeting our troops and civilian personnel from the Department of Defense, DOD, passing through the Pease International Trade Port in Portsmouth, NH. In June of 2016, they will have welcomed more than 1,000 flights passing through the trade port on their way to or from Afghanistan, Iraq, or other areas of conflict in the world.

The Pease Greeters organization was created in May of 2005 when an unannounced plane carrying members of the U.S. military landed at the Pease International Airport. The airport director, maintenance manager, and airport employees quickly got together to meet and greet these troops, offering coffee, donuts, and a big thank you for their service. Soon thereafter, the airport director discovered that additional charter flights would be arriving at Pease. Upon learning this, he reached out to the Seacoast Marine Corps League for assistance welcoming the troops and putting together a fitting ceremony to show respect, appreciation, and honor for their service.

Once word spread, dozens of citizens from New Hampshire, Maine, and Massachusetts, lent their support to organize what quickly became known as the Pease Greeters, whose mission is to promote broad participation in this welcoming of heroes, paying special attention to the education of school children by instilling respect and admiration for the troops through formal ceremonies for each flight.
