

Mr. AL GREEN of Texas. Mr. Chair, I demand a recorded vote.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Texas will be postponed.

The Acting CHAIR. The Committee will rise informally.

The Speaker pro tempore (Mrs. WALORSKI) assumed the chair.

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE

A message from the Senate by Ms. Curtis, one of its clerks, announced that the Senate has passed a bill of the following title in which the concurrence of the House is requested:

S. 84. An act to provide for an exception to a limitation against appointment of persons as Secretary of Defense within seven years of relief from active duty as a regular commissioned officer of the Armed Forces.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Committee will resume its sitting.

SEC REGULATORY ACCOUNTABILITY ACT

The Committee resumed its sitting.

AMENDMENT NO. 4 OFFERED BY MR. DESAULNIER

The Acting CHAIR (Mr. PALMER). It is now in order to consider amendment No. 4 printed in part A of House Report 115-3.

Mr. DESAULNIER. Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

At the end of the bill, add the following new section:

SEC. 5. DIVESTITURE REQUIREMENT.

The amendment made by section 2 shall not take effect until the Chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission, and all immediate family members of the Chairman, divests all securities owned by the Chairman and such immediate family members of the Chairman from any financial institution regulated by the Securities and Exchange Commission to ensure that proper and fair rule-making is administered in accordance with this Act.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to House Resolution 40, the gentleman from California (Mr. DESAULNIER) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from California.

Mr. DESAULNIER. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of this amendment to the SEC Regulatory Accountability Act in a spirit of cooperation. It is most important for the integrity of the SEC, for the investor community, for the entire U.S. population, and indeed for the economic benefit of the United States that integrity and transparency are paramount. So this amendment strengthens the bill, I believe, on behalf of the American investor as well as industry by reaffirming transparency as a core principle of efficient markets and places public service ahead of personal gain.

By requiring the head of the SEC and his immediate family members to divest themselves of all securities connected to the financial institutions regulated by the agency, we reinforce investor confidence that agency decisions are driven by market forces, not the portfolio of the Chair.

Mr. Chairman, the power and stability of U.S. markets rely on the fundamental belief that the system is transparent and fair. Anything that causes investors to question the integrity of the U.S. markets, including lack of information or opaqueness of information, will necessarily hurt our markets and make capital formation more difficult.

The SEC plays a critical role in promoting adequate transparency. Requiring the SEC Chairperson to cut financial ties with institutions that the SEC oversees is a commonsense protection of the agency's credibility and improvement to the underlying bill in my belief.

I hope my Republican colleagues agree and will support this amendment that puts public service ahead of potential personal gain.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. HUIZENGA. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to this amendment.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from Michigan is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. HUIZENGA. Mr. Chairman, again, I think we are stumbling over the fact that my colleagues on the other side of the aisle believe that we are somehow paid by the words put into the Federal Registry here.

The SEC is already covered by both governmentwide ethics laws and regulations as well as SEC supplemental ethics regulations which apply to all SEC employees, including the Chair.

Perhaps the sponsor of the amendment is not aware that under existing Federal law, the SEC Chairman cannot participate personally in any matter that would have a direct and predictable effect on her financial interests or imputed financial interest, and I would invite the sponsor to review the code at this point.

Additionally, SEC supplemental regulations prohibit SEC employees, including the Chair, from holding any security in a directly regulated entity, and they must also preclear all purchases and sales of securities.

Further, the Chairman or Commissioner must not engage in any other business, employment, or vocation while in office, nor may she ever use the power of her office or the influence of her name to promote the business interests of others.

Finally, the amendment does not seem to address what I believe Congressman DESAULNIER's description is intending to address as it is the Federal Reserve, not the Securities and Exchange Commission, that regulates the too-big-to-fail banks or, as the amendment states, financial institutions.

The SEC does not regulate financial institutions. The code defines the term "financial institution," and the definition includes "a bank, a foreign bank, and a savings association."

Since the SEC does not regulate any of these entities, the amendment would require the SEC Chair to divest of exactly zero entities. So notwithstanding that important discrepancy here, I ask my colleagues to join me in opposing the amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. DESAULNIER. Mr. Chairman, I honestly respect the tutorial, but, with all due respect, I do think that this amendment complements the existing rules and protects the investors.

Mr. Chairman, I yield such time as she may consume to the gentlewoman from Wisconsin (Ms. MOORE).

Ms. MOORE. I thank the chairman. I really appreciate the gentleman, Mr. DESAULNIER, for bringing forth this amendment.

Disclosures of and divestment in conflicts are becoming increasingly important in this administration coming up. The conflicts that we know about and the conflicts that we suspect exist with President-elect Trump and his nominees have become a tremendous source of concern as not only do they undermine the faith and fairness of U.S. financial markets, as has been pointed out, but, quite frankly, they have become a matter of national security concern.

The amendments that were rejected by Ranking Member WATERS and this amendment by Representative DESAULNIER together restore confidence that the U.S. financial system is not being manipulated for the gain of a few government officials.

Mr. Chairman, I urge all of my colleagues to support this amendment.

Mr. HUIZENGA. Mr. Chairman, at this time I am prepared to close, and I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. DESAULNIER. Mr. Chairman, with all due respect, I really think this is, as intended, a commonsense amendment. I do think it complements rather than adds on to the existing requirements to protect investors. And I really think this House, with all due respect, would want to see the markets work efficiently. We also want to ensure that the integrity of those markets and the investors are also strengthened. So I think transparency in this case with the acknowledgment that there are other already existing regulations and the belief that this amendment complements those, I would ask for the House's support.

Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

□ 1600

Mr. HUIZENGA. Mr. Chairman, I would just point out again that this amendment does not hit the target. The SEC does not regulate financial institutions. 15 U.S.C. 78c defines the term “financial institutions,” and that definition includes a bank, a foreign bank, and a savings association. The SEC does not regulate any of the entities that are described in this.

In addition to that, the Securities and Exchange Commission’s Chair—Chairwoman in this instance, who will be resigning soon—is covered under governmentwide ethics rules and laws. The SEC has additional SEC-specific rules that are in place. This amendment would do absolutely nothing to support or diminish those because it doesn’t actually address any situation that they have.

Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from California (Mr. DESAULNIER).

The question was taken; and the Acting Chair announced that the yeas appeared to have it.

Mr. DESAULNIER. Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentleman from California will be postponed.

AMENDMENT NO. 5 OFFERED BY MR. RASKIN

The Acting CHAIR. It is now in order to consider amendment No. 5 printed in part A of House Report 115-3.

Mr. RASKIN. Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

At the end of the bill, add the following new section:

SEC. 5. TRAINING REQUIREMENT FOR THE CHAIRMAN AND COMMISSIONERS OF THE SEC.

The amendment made by section 2 shall not take effect until the Chairman and each Commissioner of the Securities and Exchange Commission undergoes effective training on conduct and ethical standards to ensure all actions of the Commission are done in a manner free of conflicts of interest, specifically those related to prior employment at financial institutions and prior legal representation of financial institutions.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to House Resolution 40, the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. RASKIN) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Maryland.

Mr. RASKIN. Mr. Chairman, this amendment would require both the Chairman of the SEC and all of its Commissioners to undergo a comprehensive, professional ethics training in order to ensure that all SEC regulations and actions are free from conflicts of interest that may arise from their past or future employment or by legal representation of regulated entities.

This training into all of the ethical standards that were just invoked by my distinguished colleague from Michigan is critical to guard against regulatory capture and to protect the public interest. The whole challenge of a republic is how to get legislators and other public officers, who are agents of the people, to serve the common good rather than their own, private interests. In the cost-benefit terms of this legislation, you would call this the “agency problem.” Our Constitution, with everything from the separation of powers to the Emoluments Clause, to the Title of Nobility Clause is designed to safeguard the public interest and to reduce the prospects for mischief, corruption, and self-dealing by people in government. Providing mandatory ethics training is a simple way to remind all of us in public life whom we really work for—the American people.

Requiring employees to undergo basic ethics training is not unusual. In fact, every congressional staffer who works in this body is required to undergo ethics training in his or her first 60 days of employment here. The freshman class, of which I am a proud member, just had an excellent briefing on professional ethics standards a couple of weeks ago.

Under this amendment, Congress will be able to ensure that the SEC officials who are making the critical rules that govern the financial securities industry are looking out for the American people and not for any particular special interest.

Conflicts of interest have been rife in the financial sector. In 2008, while Wall Street and big banks preyed on the victims of the mortgage crisis, American families lost trillions of dollars in retirement values, home values, equity, and so on.

This amendment would implement a simple safeguard, ensuring that the people who regulate the financial sector are not crossing any ethical lines or are bending the rules in favor of past or future employers or of any other special interests. The people of the United States expect and deserve nothing less from Washington.

In closing, I urge all of my colleagues on both sides of the aisle to support this amendment.

I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. HUIZENGA. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to this amendment.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from Michigan is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. HUIZENGA. Mr. Chairman, I believe the sponsor of the amendment was in the Chamber when we were discussing this on the last amendment. Federal law, as well as SEC supplemental regulations, already govern ethics and conflicts of interest.

It is well-known, especially if you check out my Twitter account, I think, that most people who support this President don’t believe I support this President enough. A number of people would say that I haven’t supported the SEC Chairman to the level that I should. This, frankly, is insulting to the current President as well as the Chair. Implying somehow that this Chair has preyed off of poor people until they went bankrupt, as was just sort of laid out by the sponsor of this, is an insult.

To believe this of the SEC Chair, who is typically—and I know in this particular case is—a very accomplished professional, is amazingly short-sighted, I believe. Additionally, the Chair is required to receive personal annual ethics training as well as an initial ethics briefing. I direct the sponsor to review the statute on this.

Additionally, the Chairman and the Commissioners are required to file an ethics agreement letter in which she will agree to divest prohibited assets, and if she has not done so prior to the appointment, she is to recuse herself from matters in which she has financial conflict or the impartiality conflict, which can be found also in code.

Finally, the Chairman or a Commissioner is prohibited from engaging in any other business, employment, or vocation while in office, or she may never use the power of her office or her name to promote or influence a business interest.

Once again, I think that what we are trying to do here with the underlying bill is to make sure that the SEC follows through on what the courts have mandated in previous rulings in that they use a cost-benefit analysis. This is not about fraud. This is not about whether Mary Jo White needs ethics training. This is about making sure that the SEC has an identifiable target and goal with the rules that it is putting in place and then analyzing whether the costs and the benefits weigh in favor of protecting the consumer. Ultimately, this amendment does nothing to forward that. I oppose the amendment.

I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. RASKIN. Mr. Chairman, the gentleman from Michigan has invited us, through the various colloquies this afternoon, to believe that there is a comprehensive ethical regime in place. We agree that there is, but what there is not is a requirement that the Chair of the SEC and each of its Commissioners undergo ethics training, the kind of training that millions of Americans undergo all the time in order to understand precisely what their ethical obligations are. It is as if to say that nobody needs to have stop signs or stoplights out there because there is a traffic code someplace. There may be, but we need to give the actual direction to people who are participating in the activity of regulation.

Nothing that the good gentleman has said persuades me that the ethics training is actually taking place or that the SEC Commissioners and the Chair of the SEC do not need it.

If anything I said is read by anyone to insult the President of the United States or the current Chair of the SEC, then I would stand corrected. I don’t think I said anything that would have affronted any of them. This is basic ethics training that takes place for people across the government. For the life of me, I can't understand what the opposition to it is.

There seems to be a kind of fetishizing of cost-benefit analysis above everything else. The Constitution doesn't include the words "cost-benefit." There are a whole series of rules that we have in there, including the Emoluments Clause, which established the principle of no conflicts of interest, no foreign bribery, no domestic bribery, no compromising of the integrity of government; and I do not understand why we are so afraid of building those principles into the legal architecture that governs the Securities and Exchange Commission.

I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. HUIZENGA. Mr. Chairman, I understand that the sponsor is a constitutional law professor.

I direct the gentleman to 5 CFR 2638.305 and 5 CFR 2638.304, which read:

The Chair of the SEC is required to receive in person annual ethics training as well as an initial ethics briefing. Additionally, Chairmen and Commissioners are required to file ethics agreement letters in which they agree to divest.

The bottom line is that we don't need additional words in the Federal Register to do what is already being done.

The sponsor of the amendment mentioned that cost-benefit analysis is not in the U.S. Constitution, but neither is the SEC. However, due process is in the Constitution, and what we are trying to get at is due process to make sure that we have—us, as a legislative body—properly involved and engaged in this and that we understand what the goals and objectives of the Securities and Exchange Commission are when it is issuing a rule and whether that rule is going to effect the change intended.

What are those benefits? Is it going to benefit and protect the consumer?

Again, I reiterate the three elements of the mission of the Securities and Exchange Commission: number one, to protect investors; number two, to maintain fair and orderly and efficient markets; and number three, to facilitate capital formation. Those are the stated goals and is the job of the Securities and Exchange Commission.

I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. RASKIN. Mr. Chairman, I think we have arrived at what the difference is between me and the gentleman from Michigan.

The regulation, as he reads it, applies only to the Chair. This amendment would extend the ethics training, which he seems to support, to all of the members of the Securities and Exchange Commission. It is true that they all have to do a filing, as we all do, about our various finances, but that is not the comprehensive ethical training that all of us need to get in order to avoid conflicts of interest. So, if that is something that is good enough for the Chair, it is, presumably, good enough for all of the members of the SEC.

I would urge my colleague to rethink his opposition to this commonsense amendment, which, I think, would install precisely what the American people are asking of us, which is that all of us pay attention to public ethics in the conduct of our duties.

I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. HUIZENGA. Mr. Chairman, I maintain my opposition to this amendment.

I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. RASKIN).

The question was taken; and the Acting Chair announced that the noes appeared to have it.

Mr. RASKIN. Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Maryland will be postponed.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE ACTING CHAIR

The Acting CHAIR (during the vote). There is 1 minute remaining.

□ 1650

So the amendment was rejected.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

The Acting CHAIR. There being no further amendments, under the rule, the Committee rises.

Accordingly, the Committee rose; and the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. SIMPSON) having assumed the chair, Mr. PALMER, Acting Chair of the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, reported that that Committee, having had under consideration the bill (H.R. 78) to improve the consideration by the Securities and Exchange Commission of the costs and benefits of its regulations and orders, and, pursuant to House Resolution 40, he reported the bill back to the House with an amendment adopted in the Committee of the Whole.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the rule, the previous question is ordered.

The question is on the amendment.

The amendment was agreed to.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the engrossment and third reading of the bill.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, and was read the third time.

MOTION TO RECOMMIT

Mrs. BUSTOS. Mr. Speaker, I have a motion to recommit at the desk.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is the gentlewoman opposed to the bill?

Mrs. BUSTOS. Mr. Speaker, I am opposed.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will report the motion to recommit.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mrs. Bustos moves to recommit the bill, H.R. 78 to the Committee on Financial Services with instructions to report the same back to the House forthwith, with the following amendment:

Page 4, after line 25, insert the following:

“(C) CONSIDERATION OF THE POTENTIAL OUTSOURCING OF U.S. JOBS.—In making a reasoned determination of the costs and benefits of a proposed regulation, the Commission shall, to the extent that it is relevant to the proposed particular regulation, consider whether market participants would have an incentive to relocate their operations outside of the United States.”.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentlewoman from Illinois (Mrs. BUSTOS) is recognized for 5 minutes in support of her motion.

Mrs. BUSTOS. Mr. Speaker, this final amendment says plainly that the Securities and Exchange Commission should take into account whether any proposed rule will have an impact on outsourcing American jobs.

Many of us, especially those of us in the industrial heartland, represent regions that have experienced serious job losses because of companies sending jobs overseas. I will tell you a little bit about mine.

I have the honor of serving Illinois' 17th Congressional District. Most of my district is rural. It spans 7,000 square miles, 14 counties, and covers the entire northwestern region of the State of Illinois. We are the world headquarters for John Deere. You have probably seen the tractors or the combines out there on the farmland.

We are also the world headquarters for Caterpillar, and, as you have traveled around our country and around our world, you have probably also seen the yellow, big, earth-moving equipment. That comes from my congressional district.

But like many parts of our heartland, our region has seen far too many manufacturing jobs shipped overseas. I am going to give you a couple of examples.

In a town called Galesburg, Illinois, we had a Maytag plant that made refrigerators. Overnight, every last one of those jobs was shipped to Mexico. A dozen years later, the wages there still have not recovered because of that outsourcing.

We have a town called Hanover, Illinois, a little, bitty town in northwestern Illinois. There was a plant called Robertshaw. They made little valves that go inside of washing machines and dishwashers that measured the water that would flow through. There was nearly a zero percent defect rate on what was produced out of that plant, and the company was profitable. And yet, every last one of those jobs went to Mexico.

And then we had a company called Sensata. They made auto part sensors, and it was bought out by a company called Bain Capital. You might know a little bit about this company called Bain Capital. And they shipped every one of those jobs over to China.

I have made friends with a lot of the workers there, one of whom is named Dot Turner. She had worked there for 40-plus years, started right out of high school. And she had the indignity of—the last function that she had to do at that plant was to scrape the tape off the floor that laid the area for where the machinery had been; that was what she had to do.

So I am here to tell you those stories, but also to say that this is happening to way too many workers. Men and women like Dot Turner understand the dignity that comes with having a good job and putting in a good, hard day's work. They understand that a good career is a pathway to a better future for themselves and for their families. But too many people like Dot have been left behind.

So what are we going to do? What is ahead?

In just 9 days, President-elect Trump will take the oath of office after running on a platform of making America great again. He said he would do that by bringing home jobs that had been sent overseas.

Well, many my colleagues on this side of the aisle have been fighting to protect American jobs for years. In fact, we have put forth real solutions to spur growth in the manufacturing sector and get our middle class back to work. We have introduced more than 80 bills in our Make It In America agenda, but we have been blocked at so many turns.

So what kind of legislation is making it to the House floor instead? Bills like the one we are going to be voting on soon; bills that would make it more difficult for the Securities and Exchange Commission to protect investors and consumers, would make it more difficult for that to happen, and bills that would gamble the retirement savings of everyday Americans as if we were a Trump casino.

Working families deserve more than a bumper sticker slogan. They know that talk can be cheap in a place like Washington, D.C., and they are tired of politicians putting billionaires over the little guy. That is why this motion would ensure that our focus is on bringing back outsourced jobs.

Working families need to know that we here in Washington are fighting for them. Please join me, and let's show the American people that we are serious about this issue.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. HUIZENGA. Mr. Speaker, I claim the time in opposition.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Michigan is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. HUIZENGA. Mr. Speaker, I have to commend my colleague. This is close, but this isn't horseshoes. Words have meaning. And I have to tell you that our underlying bill does actually do what you are talking about.

□ 1700

I will direct you to page 4.

Page 4: “evaluate whether, consistent with obtaining regulatory objectives, the regulation is tailored to impose the least burden on society, including market participants, individuals, businesses of different sizes, and other entities, including State and local government entities, taking into account, to the extent practicable, the cumulative costs of regulations.”

So, what we have here, Mr. Speaker, is a problem. We have a problem with U.S. businesses not performing the way that they should. We have to understand, though, why that is happening.

I have to point out to my colleague that, frankly, we have fewer publicly traded companies in this country right now. You have to ask yourself why.

We have virtually no IPOs happening in this country. You have to ask yourself why.

Well, we know the answer. It is because we have overly burdened ourselves in this country and are no longer competitive.

In fact, here is what I look forward to on January 21: I look forward to repealing the Tax Code that we have, and then we don't have to worry; I am looking forward to repealing ObamaCare, and then we don't have to worry; I am looking forward to real regulatory reform, and then we don't have to worry about that as a country.

So, while this may be close on the objective of what our sponsor is trying to do, I would recommend voting against this motion to recommit and vote for the underlying bill.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Without objection, the previous question is ordered on the motion to recommit.

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion to recommit.

The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the noes appeared to have it.

RECORDED VOTE

Mrs. BUSTOS. Mr. Speaker, I demand a recorded vote.

A recorded vote was ordered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. This will be a 5-minute vote.

Pursuant to clause 9 of rule XX, this 5-minute vote on the motion to recommit will be followed by a 5-minute vote on passage of the bill, if ordered.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—ayes 195, noes 232, not voting 7, as follows:
