This division may be cited as the “Department of Homeland Security Appropriations Act, 2020”.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to House Resolution 765, the motion shall be debatable for 1 hour equally divided and controlled by the chair and ranking minority member of the Committee on Appropriations.

The gentlewoman from New York (Mrs. LOWEY) and the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. GRANGER) each will control 30 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentlewoman from New York.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mrs. LOWEY. Madam Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days in which to revise and extend their remarks and include extraneous material on the House amendment to the Senate amendment to H.R. 1158.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentlewoman from New York?

There was no objection.

Mrs. LOWEY. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Speaker, the national security appropriations minibus combines four bills: Defense, Commerce-Justice-Science, Financial Services and General Government, and Homeland Security.

Madam Speaker, I would like to highlight a few key successes that our cardinals have secured: $7.6 billion, $1.4 billion more than President Trump proposed, to ensure a fair and accurate 2020 Census; $425 million for election security grants to States, a key priority for Democrats for a program that was not funded last year; robust funding for initiatives to improve the quality of life of our women and men in uniform; and a 3.1 percent pay raise for Federal civilian employees.

Unfortunately, the President and Senate Republicans insisted on funding a wasteful border wall while simultaneously blocking Democratic policies that would make our immigration system more humane. However, I am pleased that we have established an immigration detention ombudsman tasked with protecting the rights of individuals in DHS custody.

Madam Speaker, this is not the bill I would have written on my own, but I am proud that we have been able to do so much good in this political environment. I urge support, and I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. GRANGER. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Speaker, I rise today in support of H.R. 1158, a bill that will provide funding for the Departments of Defense; Commerce, Justice, Science; Financial Services; and Homeland Security.

While I wish that we had been able to pass all of the bills by the beginning of the fiscal year, I am glad we are going to be able to finish the appropriations process without having to pass another continuing resolution. I am also immensely proud of the job that my fellow Republicans on the Appropriations Committee did to bring the bill to the floor.

The packages we will consider today will fully fund the government and ensure that President Trump has the resources he needs to continue the great work he is doing on behalf of the American people. This bill will make us safer by ensuring we have the funding and tools to protect ourselves at home and abroad.

The bill will safeguard our financial system from bad actors, ensure all Americans have access to a healthy and robust economy, and it will support our criminal justice system.

In particular, this bill provides $1.375 billion of new funding for the border wall, places no restrictions on the President's ability to use funds for immigration and border enforcement, and protects the number of ICE beds.

The Defense portion of this package provides funding to continue to rebuild the military after years of neglect during the Obama administration; gives our troops a 3.1 percent pay raise, the largest in a decade; and funds the U.S. Space Force, a Trump administration initiative, to ensure the United States maintains its superiority in space.

The bill provides increased funding for school safety programs and also retains longstanding Second Amendment protections that some of my colleagues on the other side of the aisle wanted to eliminate.

Plain and simple, this package is good for America, and I am proud to support it. I urge my colleagues to join me in voting in favor of this bill, and I reserve the balance of my time.

Mrs. LOWEY. Madam Speaker, I am pleased to yield 1 minute to the distinguished gentleman from Maryland (Mr. HOYER), the majority leader.

(Mr. HOYER asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. HOYER. Madam Speaker, I rise and thank Chairwoman LOWEY and Ranking Member GRANGER for the hard work that they have done, and all of their staff.

The staffs, I know, have been working around the clock on both sides of the aisle. I want to congratulate the staff director for the extraordinary work and leadership she has shown to get us to this objective.

I rise in strong support of this legislation, of both of these packages, which will fund all 12 bills before the end of the calendar year, unfortunately, not by the end of the fiscal year.

I would have been very happy to get all of this done by the end of the fiscal year, and we did our work in a timely fashion; but, unfortunately, the Senate did not pass any of its bills prior to the end of the fiscal year, and, therefore, it was impossible to get that done.

I want to thank Senator LEAHY and Senator SHELBY, as well, for the work that they have done.

I want to thank all of those who worked together, focused. There was some talk, I know, about going into next year, but this is the right thing to do. This is what the American people expect us to be doing.

This will provide our country with the certainty needed to carry out its work serving the American people and to continue making long-term investments in our national security, public health, public safety, and economic growth.

Indeed, the Appropriations Committee members and staff worked hard to produce appropriations bills that the House passed in June, when we passed bills to fund 96 percent of the government by June 26 of this year. Sadly, the Republican Senate, as I have said, and the Trump White House failed to do their jobs for months, necessitating two short-term delays that brought unnecessary uncertainty.

As a Member who has served on the Appropriations Committee for more than 36 years—although many of those years I have been on leave—I know how much work is involved in reaching agreement on funding bills.

Nobody, not one of the, I guess, 433 of us who are here, got everything that they wanted or believes this is a perfect bill, but it is a work product worthy of the Appropriations Committee, the House of Representatives, and this country. It makes compromises, which are absolutely essential. It takes a lot of late hours, caffeine, and placing trust in colleagues across the aisle to achieve that objective.

What Appropriations Committee members and staff have negotiated with the Senate and White House, as I said, is not perfect. The chair does not think it is perfect. The ranking member doesn't think it is perfect. I am sure there is nobody on either of the committees who thinks it is perfect, but it achieves key priorities and will avert a damaging government shutdown and give certainty to agencies as they move forward in the next 9 months of the fiscal year as to what resources they are going to have available to get their jobs done.

I know there is a lot of weeping and gnashing of teeth about how awful the CR is for the Defense Department. I agree with that, but there ought to be a lot of weeping and gnashing of teeth about the adverse effect on nondefense agencies, because the effect is the same: uncertainty and an inability to operate in any kind of regular order fashion.

This bill does not give President Trump additional border security funding over last year, but it does give him what he had last year. That is a compromise. People on my side are not happy about that; people on Ms. GRANGER's side, I am sure, are not happy about that. But it is a compromise, and it does continue critical investments in fighting poverty and expanding opportunities in communities across the country.

Specifically, this bill increases funding for Head Start, National Institutes of Health, and initiatives to promote clean energy and a healthier environment—important victories for those items and the working Americans we are fighting to protect every day.

This bill includes funds to secure our elections against foreign interference and provides funding to study the effects of gun violence in our communities.

Ms. GRANGER mentions it raises the military pay, but it also raises the civilians on parity, a policy that we pursued for many, many years. It is good for our staff. It is good for the Federal employees, and it makes us competitive in the ability to retain people whom we need.

It raises the cap for staff pay. Now, maybe we ought to hide that, but, very frankly, our staffs are underpaid. The hours, the talent, the intellect, the commitment, the patriotism they bring to their jobs, we don't compensate them properly.

We are not competitive, certainly, with the private sector, but we are not competitive with the executive department, and we lost good people. So I applaud the committee for that action. This comes just a week after we were able to secure a victory by extending paid parental leave for Federal civilian employees across all agencies in the annual defense authorization bill.

Critically, these appropriations bills have buy-in from the administration, having been negotiated by Secretary Mnuchin on behalf of the President.

There is no legitimate reason that these bills would be vetoed, and my expectation is that they will not be vetoed, so we will pass them through the House. Hopefully, the Senate will pass them in the next 72 hours and send them to the President and he will sign these bills.

All of us ought to be proud of the fact that we got that done by the end of the calendar year.

Again, let me stress, my objective will be, next year, to get that done by the end of the fiscal year. I can't remember when we last did that, but I will tell all of my colleagues that that will be my intent to set that as an objective as it was to subject December 20 as the deadline for getting these bills done.

I strongly urge the President to sign these bills. Federal employees in my district and in every congressional district in the country deserve better than to be told to go home without their paychecks.

Madam Speaker, 800,000 people who work for us—we are the board of directors—we told 400,000 of them: You are not critical. Go home. Stay there. You can't come to work legally even if you wanted to.

And to 400,000, we said: No, you are critical. Come to work, but, by the way, we are not going to pay you.

Now, they believed and we did, in fact, pay them retroactively, but that ought not to be the way you operate any small, medium, or large business, much less one of the largest enterprises on the face of the Earth—I guess, the largest enterprise.

So I hope all of my colleagues, Democrats and Republicans, will join me in voting for these appropriations bills, these 12 bills, quite frankly, the only bills that have to pass. There are a lot of other bills that ought to pass from a policy perspective, but the government doesn't shut down if they don't pass, whether it is a tax bill, an environmental bill, whatever bill.

Let's send a resounding message of support to make it clear that this is the bipartisan path forward to avoid a shutdown and do our jobs for the American people.

Again, I congratulate the chair; I congratulate the ranking member; and I am so pleased that they are together. I join them in asking every Member to vote for these bills. It is our job. It is our responsibility. It is our duty.

Ms. GRANGER. Madam Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Alabama (Mr. ADERHOLT).

Mr. ADERHOLT. Madam Speaker, I thank the ranking member, and I also rise today in support of H.R. 1158, as the majority leader did, the Consolidated Appropriations Act of 2020.

While this bill is not perfect, as it was also mentioned—and, quite honestly, I have concerns that there is an ongoing trend toward increased spending—I will say that division B of this legislation, the Commerce, Justice, Science, and Related Agencies Appropriations Act, includes assistance that is critical to law enforcement, the Census, and NASA, among other things.

I would like to thank Chairman SERRANO, and I thank Chairwoman LOWEY, Ranking Member GRANGER, as well as our Senate counterparts for their leadership, their diligence, and their willingness to come together to form this meeting of the minds to bring this FY 2020 bill to the floor and to fruition.

I also want to thank Mr. SERRANO's staff—Mr. Bob Bonner, Jeff Ashford, Trisha Castaneda, TJ Lowdermilk, Shannon McCully, Matt Smith, and B.G. Wright—for their hard work and the many long days that were, no doubt, dedicated to helping produce this legislation. I appreciate their cooperative spirit in which they worked with my staff to address so many of the issues that are in this bill.

And, of course, I also want to thank my staff for their outstanding work.

I want to thank our CJS subcommittee staff, Stephanie Gadbois and Kristin Clarkson, for their hard work, their long hours, and their dedication over the last year, and especially the hard work of the last few weeks in finalizing this bill.

Let me just briefly recap. The bill has $22.6 billion for NASA. The funding will help support the President's Artemis initiative, which includes completion and further development of the Space Launch System to ensure that it is the United States and not our adversaries that will control future access to space.

In addition to NASA, the bill includes $7.3 billion to support the 2020 Decennial Census which will be necessary to get an accurate count of all Americans, including those in hard-to-count communities. It also includes critical funding for the Federal law enforcement components of the Department of Justice, including the FBI, the United States Marshals Service, and the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives. I am pleased to say that these funds will also support Attorney General Barr's efforts to fight the scourge of violent crimes and acts of mass violence.

In support of the valuable efforts of our local law enforcement partners back home, this bill also includes $547 million for the Byrne Justice Assistance grants, along with increased resources to eliminate the sexual assault kit backlog, also fund drug court programs, and support other vital initiatives that fight the opioid epidemic.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The time of the gentleman has expired.

Ms. GRANGER. Madam Speaker, I yield the gentleman from Alabama an additional 1 minute.

Mr. ADERHOLT. Madam Speaker, this bill provides funding increases for the agencies that ensure compliance with our trade laws, along with programs that foster American innovation and competitiveness, not only in our communities and in each of our States but around the world.

Finally, I am pleased that this bill also contains longstanding Second Amendment protections that were targeted for elimination earlier this year.

So, in closing, I would like to thank, again, Chairman SERRANO for his great spirit to work with and how he has led the Commerce, Justice, Science, and Related Agencies Subcommittee, and I wish him the best.

Mrs. LOWEY. Madam Speaker, I yield 4 minutes to the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. VISCLOSKEY), who is the distinguished chairman of the Defense Subcommittee.

Mr. VISCLOSKEY. Madam Speaker, I thank the chairwoman for yielding.

I would like to begin by expressing my appreciation to Ranking Member CALVERT. Mr. CALVERT continues to be a tremendous partner in this process, and he is a joy to work with.

I would also like to express my gratitude to the chairwoman, Mrs. LOWEY, as well as the ranking member, Ms. GRANGER, and the other members of the committee. I would like to thank each of our incomparable staff. This legislation would not be possible without their intellectual acumen, outstanding effort, and significant personal sacrifices.

Division A of the bill provides appropriations for the Department of Defense and is the result of a negotiated compromise. Despite our best efforts, I was very disappointed to recede on certain provisions of the House-passed bill, particularly those that restricted the ability of the administration to reprogram Defense funding for the border wall and several others that would have returned some balance to the oversight relationship between the executive and legislative branches. The department's actions in the past year have fundamentally damaged its relationship with this committee. With this agreement, we increase our emphasis on oversight as we move forward.

Nevertheless, there is a tremendous amount of good provided in this bill. The bill provides more than ample funding for the Department of Defense to make major investments in readiness. But our primary focus has been on the well-being and morale of those in uniform, their families, DOD civilians, and the Defense communities.

The bill provides the funding necessary to support a 3.1 percent military pay raise for our women and men in uniform. This is the largest increase in base pay since 2010.

The bill provides an additional $110 million for upgrades to DOD childcare facilities, which I see as just the first step in addressing the significant shortfall of quality childcare within the military services.

The bill provides $315 million above the request to address public school infrastructure requirements on DOD facilities.

The bill provides $1.42 billion for environmental restoration activities, $180.5 million above enacted levels for this year. Additionally, the bill provides $1.8 billion in natural disaster funding for repairs and replacement of equipment at military bases damaged by natural disasters in eight States, including Virginia, Florida, California, and Georgia.

In closing, I would like to end by reminding the Department of Defense that report language is directive, not permissive. Actions in direct contravention of congressional direction in the report are absolutely unacceptable and must stop.

Again, I thank my colleagues and staff.

Madam Speaker, I urge support for the bill.

Ms. GRANGER. Madam Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from California (Mr. CALVERT).

Mr. CALVERT. Madam Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman for yielding.

Madam Speaker, the ranking member of the Appropriations Committee has done a tremendous job navigating all these bills through a very difficult negotiation in such a short timeframe. Her steady leadership, experience, and focus completing this difficult task was critical to ensuring an end product that will garner Republican support and that the President will sign. I also want to thank Chairwoman LOWEY for keeping the process on track during the very difficult political times that we are in.

I would also like to extend my sincere thanks to my chairman, Mr. VISCLOSKEY, from the great State of Indiana. Mr. VISCLOSKEY has been a tremendous partner to me and our side of the aisle throughout this whole process maintaining the bipartisan nature of the Defense Subcommittee. He has been very gracious and accommodating, and I thank him sincerely. I look forward to continuing to work in a collaborative manner during the coming year.

The bill includes $693 billion for the Department of Defense, including $624 billion in base funds, $70.7 million for Overseas Contingency Operations, and $1.8 billion in disaster assistance. In total, this bill is nearly $19 billion more than the fiscal year 2019 level.

After thoughtful negotiations between the House and the Senate, we have a good, balanced bill that we look forward to passing in both Chambers and getting to the President for his signature.

Our number one priority is to provide for the Nation's defense. The world remains a dangerous place. We have got troops in combat against ISIS, al-Qaida, and associated forces. Authoritarian competitors—especially China and Russia—are seeking regional dominance and trying to upend the post-World War II international order. North Korea continues to modernize its nuclear weapons capability and means of delivery. A hostile Iran remains a threat to Israel and other U.S. partners, as well as our forces in the Middle East. Instability to our south has produced conditions that bring people, which tragically includes unaccompanied children, into our Nation illegally.

For all these reasons, we must get this bill done.

As we all know, operating under continuing resolutions actually costs more money and results in delayed capabilities. The department needs stable, predictable, and timely funding to ensure it is prepared to meet the threats we face now and in the future.

The funding in this bill recognizes threats of U.S. interests throughout the world while continuing modernization efforts to maintain the peace and deter our near-peer adversaries.

It also supports the men and women in the military by addressing quality-of-life issues that Chairman VISCLOSKEY has championed by including additional funds to address childcare and medical care. Of course, we fund the 3.1 percent pay raise and provide additional funding for medical research. The bill increases funding for operations and maintenance to sustain and improve readiness levels. Funding is provided for robust procurement of next generation equipment to ensure our men and women in uniform always have the tactical advantage. We also increase funding for research and development to ensure we can meet and preferably deter near-peer threats.

Madam Speaker, I encourage everyone to vote for this bill. It is a strong bill and ensures that our military has the resources it needs.

I want to thank the staff on both sides for all their hard work.

Mrs. LOWEY. Madam Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. QUIGLEY), who is the distinguished chairman of the Financial Services and General Government Subcommittee.

Mr. QUIGLEY. Madam Speaker, I rise today to speak about the Financial Services and General Government Subcommittee portion of the appropriations package before us.

Before I begin, I would like to thank Chairwoman LOWEY, Ranking Member GRANGER, and Subcommittee Ranking Member TOM GRAVES for their hard work and commitment throughout this process. I would also like to thank staff on both sides for all their hard work behind the scenes, particularly my own staff and the staff of Financial Services and General Government who don't put their names in these things, but we know and thank Lisa and others. Our amazing subcommittee staff, in particular, put in long hours to make this bill come together.

The FSGG bill provides $23.8 billion in total discretionary resources for a broad array of agencies and programs ranging from the Department of the Treasury to the Consumer Product Safety Commission. It is a bill that I am not only proud of, but one that we can collectively all be proud of.

My top priority as chairman this year has been to help States and local governments secure and protect the integrity of American elections. That is why I am proud to have successfully included $425 million in funding for the Election Assistance Commission to issue a new round of election security grants to States. This is the first investment for this purpose since 2018.

Let us be clear, this is not a partisan matter. We know the Russians interfered in our 2016 elections, and they are going to be back. It is critical we provide these funds so election officials can replace outdated voting equipment and implement protections to ensure our election system can withstand future attempts of foreign interference.

I am also proud that the bill makes targeted investments to ensure that capital and other assistance gets to small businesses and low-income communities. The bill boosts funding for the Community Development Financial Institutions Fund by $12 million, which helps support affordable housing, small businesses, and infrastructure in underserved and rural communities, in addition to supplying credit to disadvantaged communities. The bill also increases entrepreneurial development programs at the SBA by $13 million.

We boost funding for the Securities and Exchange Commission, provide an increase for the Federal Trade Commission, and include a long overdue investment in the Consumer Product Safety Commission.

Another important focus this year is bolstering assistance to taxpayers, including increases for the taxpayer advocate and tax counseling and assistance programs. For our hardworking Federal workers, I am thrilled that our bill includes a 3.1 percent pay increase.

In closing, Madam Speaker, this Financial Services appropriations bill is a result of bipartisan collaboration among members and hard work from our staff, and I urge my colleagues to join me in support of this bill.

Ms. GRANGER. Madam Speaker, I yield 4 minutes to the gentleman from Tennessee (Mr. FLEISCHMANN).

Mr. FLEISCHMANN. Madam Speaker, Ranking Member, and Chairwoman LOWEY, I rise today to lend my strong support to all of the appropriations bills that will be before us today, but specifically as the ranking member on the Homeland Security Subcommittee of the Appropriations Committee, I am here to speak about the Department of Homeland Security Appropriations Act, specifically.

As we have heard today from speakers on both sides of the aisle, this is not an ideal bill, but I think it is a very good and strong bill. It is a good bill crafted in a difficult environment—probably one of the most difficult environments I have seen in my almost 10-year tenure. I tell you, Madam Speaker, it is worthy of our support, as are all the bills here today.

I specifically, though, as the ranking member, the highest Republican on this subcommittee, want to thank Chairwoman ROYBAL-ALLARD. She is the head Democrat and we have worked well together. We don't view the world and we don't view this bill in total agreement, but we got it done, and that is very important, again, in these trying times.

This Homeland Security bill before us provides nearly $1.4 billion for continued construction of border barriers in high-priority areas identified by Customs and Border Protection and provides funding for the same level of detention beds as we had in fiscal year 2019. It also maintains the same transfer and reprogramming authorities.

The Department of Homeland Security is a vast agency and, looking at the bill beyond the investments in border and immigration enforcement, there are so many activities, programs, and initiatives that we all agree on across the aisle, across the Capitol, and really across the great United States of America. As I have said before, 90 percent of the funding in this bill we all can agree on.

We have solid investments in our great United States Coast Guard, and let's remember, Madam Speaker, this is the one branch of the military that did not get paid during the government shutdown last year, but the men and women of the Coast Guard bravely continued their missions. For the Coast Guard—the military branch with so many domestic missions on top of its contributions to the Nation's defense—this bill provides desperately needed new air and marine assets as well as re-investing in personnel.

We have plus-ups for the Secret Service to continue leading law enforcement on national special security events and protection for all the Presidential candidates.

We have plus-ups for the Cybersecurity and Infrastructure Security Agency to help keep our government's IT system secure, as well as providing for technical assistance to States, Tribes, and localities.

We have more than $17 billion for FEMA disaster relief to ensure that we are ready for whatever storms hit our homes plus increases of over $90 million for grants to State and local communities to prepare for and mitigate disasters.

Further, as our loved ones travel over this holiday season, the bill provides an increase of over $210 million for the operations and equipment of TSA in fiscal year 2020.

Madam Speaker, finally, I thank the staff who have worked so hard together. I thank, especially, the staff on both sides, majority and minority, Darek, Kris, Bob, Karyn, Mike, Elizabeth, Rachel, Victoria, Dena, and Kristin, plus Daniel from my own staff, for all of their hard work to put together this good bill.

Mrs. LOWEY. Madam Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the distinguished gentlewoman from Ohio (Ms. KAPTUR), the chairwoman of the Subcommittee on Energy and Water Development, and Related Agencies.

Ms. KAPTUR. Madam Speaker, I applaud Chairwoman LOWEY and the ranking member, Ms. GRANGER, for bringing us to this point today.

I thank the Committee on Appropriations subcommittees being discussed here now for advancing a conference agreement that provides critical funding for Defense, Homeland Security, Commerce-Justice-Science, and Financial Services.

H.R. 1158 and the Defense package address the priorities of readiness, modernization, and reform, to deter our main adversaries of Russia and China. Chairman VISLOSKY has crafted a careful compromise that ensures our Nation regains the advantage in hypersonic weapons and many other areas.

The Homeland Security portion of the bill also provides important investments. It places safeguards on the Department of Homeland Security to ensure its work is legal, safe, and in the national interest. The safety of our homeland is increasingly threatened by bad actors, both here at home and abroad, and this bill protects the 2020 election, a top national security priority.

The bill also provides funding for key issues at NASA, including for aeronautics; for the regional economic development program; and for harmful algal bloom research at the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

Lastly, the bill provides investments in our Nation's credit unions and community development financial institutions, and it makes critical investments in election security grants to harden vulnerable election infrastructure.

Funding the government and keeping the lights on used to be a norm. Hopefully, we help restore that today. When the House passes this bill, we will be restoring the American people's faith in our ability to get the job done for our country.

Madam Speaker, again, I thank Chairwoman LOWEY for her extraordinary intelligence, leadership, and good demeanor that made this moment possible.

Ms. GRANGER. Madam Speaker, I yield 4 minutes to the gentleman from Kentucky (Mr. ROGERS).

Mr. ROGERS of Kentucky. Madam Speaker, I rise in support of this package to fund government operations in fiscal year 2020. I extend my congratulations to this dynamic duo, the first time we have ever had females occupy the chair and ranking member of this committee and, for that matter, I guess, any other committee in the House.

This dynamic duo has produced a very good document, a very good exercise of the power of the purse of the Congress granted by the Constitution. I salute these two and wish them well as the day progresses.

As a former chair of the full committee, I know of the extreme patience that is required in this job that they are occupying and the difficulty of getting 435 Members in this body, as well as the other body, the White House, and the world, together under any stretch of the imagination, but they have done that. It is difficult to do, and we salute them for it. I especially, having been there, thank them for the great patience that they have shown in putting this bill together.

This first package before us reflects our commitment to our Nation's security and our military leadership across the world. The Department of Defense receives additional resources to support our warfighters with the best available technology. We also provide these brave men and women with a hard-earned and well-deserved pay raise.

Within the committee, I have been particularly focused on keeping the DOD's electronic health records on track, meshing DOD's medical records with that of the VA. This bill takes bold steps in the right direction to ensure our servicemembers continue to receive the best medical care when they transition out of Active Duty and into the hands of the VA.

Second, President Trump is rightly focused on addressing the crisis at our southern border. This legislation will support his efforts to end the seemingly unending flow of drugs that found their way into every American community and, practically, every American home, as well as the violence of the brutal cartels that profit immensely from this trade. Nearly $1.4 billion is included for the border wall, along with additional resources for the Department of Homeland Security to hire more personnel and deploy advanced technology in this region.

We were also able to eliminate dangerous riders that would have limited the President's ability to enforce our immigration laws while still ensuring a strong humanitarian response that reflects our values as Americans.

This package also continues our momentum in the fight against opioid abuse and addiction. With targeted resources for the Department of Justice and other Federal agencies, the diverse programs funded in this bill reflect the holistic strategy that Congress has embraced against this problem: enforcement, treatment, education, and prevention, all working in concert, in a holistic fashion. Drug courts, veterans treatment courts, and prescription drug monitoring programs receive robust support in this first package.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The time of the gentleman has expired.

Ms. GRANGER. Madam Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Kentucky.

Mr. ROGERS of Kentucky. Madam Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman.

Included as well are antiheroin and antimeth task forces that bring law enforcement agents from multiple jurisdictions together to end this scourge.

Finally, the bill allocates $30 million within the Economic Development Administration for assistance to coal mining communities that continue to struggle with the downturn in that industry. And it maintains all pro-life and Second Amendment protections that exist under current law.

Madam Speaker, this bill is worthy of our strong support, and I urge the adoption of this masterful package.

Mrs. LOWEY. Madam Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentlewoman from Florida (Ms. WASSERMAN SCHULTZ), the chairwoman of the Military Construction, Veterans Affairs, and Related Agencies Subcommittee.

Ms. WASSERMAN SCHULTZ. Madam Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman for yielding.

Madam Speaker, I rise in support of this minibus package that by no means is perfect and that represents, for sure, a tough compromise. But it makes strong investments to protect our Nation and upholds our values as Americans.

The Commerce-Justice-Science division of this bill protects children by increasing the Missing and Exploited Children's Program funding, but I was deeply disappointed that the House language, which would have directed $40 million specifically for the Internet Crimes Against Children program at DOJ, was dropped from the final agreement at the insistence of Senate Republicans. This is inexcusable.

The New York Times just published an expose detailing the explosion of child sexual abuse imagery on the internet. It is incumbent on Congress to provide adequate support for the Internet Crimes Against Children task forces, which were authorized by bipartisan legislation I passed, the PROTECT Our Children Act, in 2008.

The Internet Crimes Against Children task forces have successfully rescued thousands of children, and their success is directly attached to the amount of funding we provide to them to do investigations.

Notably, the CJS division also restores funding for the Census Bureau as it gears up for the 2020 Census, providing $7.6 billion to the Bureau to ensure that everyone in the United States is counted and represented.

CJS also includes $19 million specifically for research to combat harmful algal blooms, which have devastated my State's coastal ecosystems and economy.

I am also pleased that the Financial Services division includes $1.3 million for local pool safety grant programs. Drowning is the leading cause of unintentional injury and death for children ages 1 to 4 in this country, which is why I sponsored and passed the Virginia Graeme Baker Pool and Spa Safety Act to create and fund these grants in 2007.

Additionally, this bill helps us protect and secure our democracy with $425 million for election security system grants to States, a vital provision that will help ensure our election security.

The Defense division of this package invests in our national security and our Armed Forces, providing $622.7 billion in base funding, which is an increase of $16.2 billion above the enacted and $88.7 billion above the President's own budget request.

The Defense bill also provides $110 million for peer-reviewed DOD cancer research funding, a longtime priority under the leadership of Chairwoman NITA LOWEY. I am proud and thankful that the language I sponsored to specifically include metastatic cancer in the final agreement is still in the bill. In total, the Defense division provides almost $500 million for cancer research.

However, I do want to note that I was disappointed about how the Homeland Security division turned out in this agreement. Chairwoman ROYBAL-ALLARD put together an excellent House bill that included restrictions on the ability to transfer and reprogram funding for ICE and CBP. The Trump administration repeatedly violates congressional intent by shifting funding to ICE beds and to implement the dangerous and cruel Migrant Protection Protocols. Sadly, the bicameral agreement strips the House guardrails, though I am glad to see the House bill's immigration ombudsman position is maintained.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The time of the gentlewoman has expired.

Mrs. LOWEY. Madam Speaker, I yield an additional 1 minute to the gentlewoman from Florida.

Ms. WASSERMAN SCHULTZ. Madam Speaker, the legislation also includes my language to require on-demand admission to Members of Congress into DHS facilities so that we can conduct oversight without the administration whitewashing the reality inside before we arrive. That accountability is essential.

The American people are counting on us to enact full-year spending bills that invest responsibly and provide much-needed budget certainty.

The bill also prohibits HHS from turning over immigration information about potential sponsors of immigrants to our country. That is also vital to make sure that our immigrants are protected and that they have sponsors who are eligible and don't live in fear of having their immigration status turned over to DHS.

This bill does all of this and more. It is not perfect, but no compromise ever is. I am proud, as a member of the Appropriations Committee, to join my colleagues in support of it.

Ms. GRANGER. Madam Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. MOOLENAAR).

Mr. MOOLENAAR. Madam Speaker, I thank Chair LOWEY and Ranking Member GRANGER for this opportunity to speak today on this appropriations legislation.

The bill before us right now provides crucial funding for our Nation's military, giving our soldiers their biggest pay raise in a decade and providing resources they need to win on the battlefield.

It is a strong complement to the next bill coming up today, where we will fund the Army Corps of Engineers and pass through Congress historic progress at the Soo Locks, funding the construction of a new lock that will be vital to shipping on the Great Lakes and for American manufacturing.

American manufacturing is responsible for millions of jobs, and this legislation also supports hardworking men and women across our Nation with the Manufacturing Extension Partnership.

Constituents across my district have told me how this program does crucial work to support the production of Michigan-made goods.

Another issue I know my constituents are concerned about is the opioid crisis and the threat of fentanyl to our communities. This legislation funds efforts at our Nation's borders, where officials have already stopped thousands of pounds of fentanyl and heroin from entering our country. The opioid epidemic requires a robust effort from all levels of government, as well as law enforcement and medical professionals.

The next bill also helps in this fight, with record funding for the NIH, which will support research into nonaddictive treatments for pain, as well as the fight against cancer and Alzheimer's.

Finally, this bill funds Great Lakes monitoring at NOAA in the Commerce Department, which, along with the Great Lakes Restoration Initiative, does outstanding work to protect our Great Lakes. The GLRI works with State and local government, conservation groups and research universities, including Central Michigan University in my district. This year, the GLRI is receiving $320 million in the legislation that is coming up next, and I know it will help protect the Great Lakes for future generations.

I am grateful for the support for many of these priorities from our colleagues on the House Appropriations Committee, including leadership on both sides and, particularly, for my friend from Ohio, MARCY KAPTUR, who visited the Soo Locks with me and officials from the Army Corps this summer.

Mrs. LOWEY. Madam Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from Texas (Mr. CUELLAR), a member of the Appropriations Committee.

Mr. CUELLAR. Madam Speaker, I want to thank my chairwoman, Mrs. NITA LOWEY, for all the work that she has been doing, along with the staff—fantastic work—and, of course, my colleague from Texas, also, Ms. GRANGER, for her and her staff working together as a team.

Madam Speaker, I am speaking on this bill. As you know, anytime you develop a consensus, there are things that we might disagree on, but I just have to say that there are so many good things that I agree with: the work that they did for trade, commerce, education, healthcare, transportation, infrastructure, border security, the military, and our veterans.

Just to highlight a couple of things: $673 million to hire more immigration judges and support staff;

$7.5 billion increase for the Census Bureau;

$8 million for the fever ticks, which is so important for south Texas;

$50 million-plus for the Department of Defense Impact Aid and $20 million for the Department of Defense Impact Aid for Children with Disabilities for our military bases in Texas and across the Nation;

$32 million for carbon emissions capture research, technologies, and storage. We are number one in Texas in energy, but we want to make sure that we do it in a safe environmental way;

$135 million for Small Business Development Centers to make sure that we emphasize our small businesses; and Title I Grants to our local schools, which got $16.3 billion.

The Pell grant, we increased that to make sure that students have the money to go to college, and I want to say thank you for that increase.

On trade, there is money to hire 1,200 CBP officers and ag specialists; and, I guess, once we pass NAFTA 2.0 later on this week, we need to have those inspectors at the bridges, so I want to thank the committee for adding that money.

We also added $13 million to hire what we call Border Patrol coordinating officers, and those are entry-level positions so we don't take Border Patrol or CBP officers away from their work; and we can have these new officers do the humanitarian care.

Now, unfortunately, there is a little bit of money for the wall, which I don't agree with. But I do want to say thank you for the language that I have asked for, that is, to make sure that we don't construct any fencing in certain areas of my district: the Santa Ana National Wildlife Refuge; the Bentsen-Rio Grande Valley State Park; La Lomita Historical Park; the National Butterfly Center; the Vista Del Mar Ranch, which is SpaceX in Brownsville; and now we added the historical cemeteries. No fence will be built in those areas.

I also want to thank them for adding my language on making sure that they sit down with the local jurisdictions, if they have to work on the design or the alignment, so as to mitigate community and environmental impact. I want to thank the committee for adding that language itself.

So, again, this is a good bill where both sides got together. I want to thank Ms. GRANGER and Mrs. NITA LOWEY and the committee.

Ms. GRANGER. Madam Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mrs. LOWEY. Madam Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentlewoman from Florida (Ms. FRANKEL), a member of the Appropriations Committee.

Ms. FRANKEL. Madam Speaker, I thank our illustrious chair for her great work.

Madam Speaker, later today, the Energy and Water bill will include significant funding for a critical bipartisan environmental issue in my home State of Florida.

Known as the River of Grass, the Everglades is a 100-mile-long natural region of tropical wetlands that is the main source of water for millions of Floridians and visitors. It contains one of Florida's and America's most popular national parks. It is home to hundreds of animal species.

The State of Florida and the Federal Government are engaged in a long-term undertaking to restore its natural flow and improve water quality. This bill, Madam Speaker, includes $200 million for Everglades restoration, the largest allocation ever by the Federal Government for this project. It will help protect south Florida's magnificent ecosystem, keep our water safe, and drive our economy.

Ms. GRANGER. Madam Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Tennessee (Mr. FLEISCHMANN).

Mr. FLEISCHMANN. Madam Speaker, again, I want to thank Chairwoman LOWEY and Ranking Member GRANGER, also Ranking Member SIMPSON.

Today, I rise, again, in support of another one of our great appropriations bills, the Energy and Water and Related Agencies bill.

As the Speaker knows, I spoke earlier in very fervent support of the Homeland Security bill. The Energy and Water bill is robust. It is well-funded.

I just actually spoke with a member of the press outside, and the gentleman asked me, over the past few years, why the Energy and Water bill had been increased so much. The answer is clear: It is because Republicans and Democrats in the House and the Senate and the administrations, including this administration as well, understand that the Nation needs what the Department of Energy is doing.

Now, obviously, I have a bit of a bias. I represent, I think, one of the greatest Department of Energy reservations at Oak Ridge. We have a national lab. We have the Y-12 plant. We are building the uranium processing facility. I thank the chairwoman for the robust funding for that great construction project.

Also, legacy cleanup all across the United States of America—not only in Oak Ridge, but in Savannah River; in Hanford, Washington; in Los Alamos, New Mexico. Republicans and Democrats and communities are working together cleaning up legacy waste.

There was a time in America when we were not as careful—during the Cold War and prior to and during World War II—when we manufactured these weapons and there was legacy waste out there. It is the obligation, I think, of the Federal Government to clean it up. It is high time that we do it, and we are doing it with our funding priorities.

So whether it is our great national labs—there are 17 of them all across the United States: the NNSA, the Office of Science—it hearkens me, again, at a time when we see a divided nation, a divided Capitol, that we can come together in very strong, fervent, and robust agreement to support this funding bill for the Department of Energy and its related agencies. That means our locks will be funded with the Army Corps of Engineers and all of our key DOE functions will continue to be supported at the highest level.

This keeps America at the forefront. We lead the world in supercomputing. We lead the world in materials research. We lead the world in advanced manufacturing.

So I thank my colleagues for their robust support of this bill, and I urge its support with the other bills in this plan.

Mrs. LOWEY. Madam Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. GRANGER. Madam Speaker, I yield myself the balance of my time.

In closing, I would like to take a few minutes to thank several individuals who were instrumental in bringing this package to the floor today.

First, I would like to thank my friend and our full committee chair, NITA LOWEY. Though we don't always agree, she is respectful of other opinions and always works in good faith and is a pleasure to work with.

I would also like to thank our Republican members of the Appropriations Committee for their hard work to secure as many of our priorities as possible in this final package.

There were many other Members who engaged in this process, and their input was vital in producing a bill that reflects input from our Conference and the constituents they represent.

It was also a pleasure to work with my Senate Appropriations Committee colleagues, Chairman RICHARD SHELBY and Vice Chairman PAT LEAHY. They are both incredibly tough negotiators.

Finally, and certainly not least, I would like to thank the staff on both sides of the aisle in the House and the Senate who have worked virtually around the clock for the last month to bring this bill across the finish line. We have true professionals working for our committees, and I think I speak for all Members when I say just how thankful we are for their efforts.

I urge my colleagues to join me in voting in favor of this bill, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mrs. LOWEY. Madam Speaker, I urge support of the bill, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Ms. ROYBAL-ALLARD. Madam Speaker, I want to begin by thanking the Ranking Member of the Homeland Security Appropriations

Subcommittee, Mr. FLEISCHMANN, for his professionalism and partnership in putting this bill together. I don't believe either one of us is satisfied with all aspects of the bill, but I am confident that he and our staffs put their best foot forward in trying to find compromise and resolution.

When excluding major disaster funding and funding for overseas contingency operations by the Coast Guard, Division D of H.R. 1158 appropriates $50.5 billion for the Department of Homeland Security. That total is $1.2 billion below the budget request and $1.1 billion above the FY2019 enacted level, including an increase of $325 million for cybersecurity and infrastructure security.

This bill significantly enhances oversight of our immigration and detention enforcement activities, including increases of:

$10 million for a new Office of Immigration Detention Ombudsman to conduct unannounced inspections of detention facilities and investigate and resolve complaints about misconduct by DHS personnel;

$20 million for the Inspector General for oversight of detention and enforcement activities; and $14 million for ICE's Office of Professional Responsibility to increase the frequency and rigor of detention inspections.

The bill increases funding for the Office of Targeted Violence and Terrorism Prevention, including $10 million for a grant program to help communities develop strategies and programs to prevent targeted violence.

For CBP, while the bill is $43.7 million below the FY2019 enacted level, it continues to invest in smart border security technologies, the hiring of customs officers to facilitate trade and travel at the border, and humanitarian assistance for migrants in CBP custody.

For ICE, the bill increases resources for Alternatives to Detention to ensure immigrants can remain in our communities while awaiting their fair day in immigration court, but does not increase detention beds above the FY2019 level.

There are no increases to hire new Border Patrol Agents, or Immigration enforcement personnel, and no funding above FY2019 for border barriers.

The bill provides resources for:

TSA to manage increased passenger volume and to procure advanced detection technologies to make our airports safer and more efficient; the Coast Guard to meet increased mission requirements, including a down payment on a new Polar Security Cutter to advance our national interests in the Arctic; the Secret Service to manage candidate protection for next year's presidential election; and increased resources for FEMA grant programs, including a total of $90 million for non-profit security grants.

The bill also includes multiple oversight and reporting directives related to immigration enforcement and detention, and it authorizes members of Congress to make unannounced oversight visits to detention facilities.

The other bills included in this minibus also include priorities I support, including $7.6 billion for a fair and accurate census; a 3.1% pay raise for our servicemembers and civil servants; $425 million for election security grants; and grant funding to address the sexual assault kit and DNA evidence backlogs.

Unfortunately, the bill does not reclaim Congress's constitutional power of the purse.

House and Senate Republicans refused to include House bill provisions that would have prevented the President from once again diverting other funds to augment appropriated levels of border barrier and detention bed funding.

To be clear, this bill is better for the Department and for congressional oversight than if we had turned to the only other alternative, a year-long Continuing Resolution.

Nevertheless, it is an abdication of congressional authority for this bill to continue allowing the President to routinely ignore and circumvent congressional funding decisions.

Despite the many good things in this legislation, I cannot legitimize ceding that authority once again to the President by voting for the bill.

Ms. MOORE. Madam Speaker, I rise in opposition to the House Amendment to the Senate Amendment to H.R. 1158, a funding package that wraps together the FY 2020 Department of Defense and the FY 2020 Department of Homeland Security funding bills. While I support the other funding bills included in this package, I am concerned and opposed to the policies and priorities outlined in the Defense and Homeland Security bill and will vote No.

I support our men and women in uniform and ensuring they have the equipment and resources they need to do their jobs. The 3.1% military pay raise should be applauded.

The best way to support our men and women is to ensure those funds are being well spent rather than on things that do nothing to enhance or security, that we do not need, and which we cannot afford, but also for Congress to reassert our authority to prevent dangerous national security and foreign policy decisions, that will have consequences for generations.

Among my concerns with the Defense bill is continued and higher spending for the Defense Department with little or no oversight, especially when it comes to wasteful spending on overbudget programs. In this bill, we fund one of the largest military budgets in history, with little oversight to ensure we are getting the best bang for the buck. As we have seen with this capricious President, oversight is essential and necessary.

I am also troubled by the decision to drop the provision that would call for the repeal of the 2001 Authorization for the Use of Military Force and for Congress to debate its replacement. Congress' war power is not self-executing and we need to aggressively protect it.

We will never stop open ended war if we never reconsider the open-ended authorizations that are feeding them. Yet, I am concerned when you consider this omission combined with the decision to drop key provisions from the FY 2020 NDAA (that I voted to add to that bill in the House) such as the provision ending the 2002 AUMF for Iraq—which is outdated and needless. While the FY 2020 NDAA included a provision providing paid leave to federal employees, it dropped strong language barring funding for an unauthorized war with Iran and ending U.S. involvement in the humanitarian catastrophe in Yemen.

This is the bill that funds the policies and spending that was authorized in the NDAA and I will vote NO.

Tomorrow, we'll have a debate about the Constitution and our authority, ability, and responsibility to hold the President accountable. Well, we need a similar debate when it comes to war and peace. The Constitution is clear about Congress' authority and yet every time we punt on reasserting our authority to either approve or disapprove sending our men and women in uniform to war, we weaken our institution and our democracy.

Please know I will continue to work with my colleagues and support legislation to address the important House-passed provisions that were left out of this legislation and the final FY 2020 NDAA.

I also oppose the Department of Homeland Security funding bill. Neither this bill nor the Defense bill include strong restrictions on the President's ability to transfer and move funds for the border wall or to implement and enforce his immoral and unlawful immigration policies. From the terrible family separation policy, to the remain in Mexico policy, to even the decision by immigration authorities to ignore the CDC recommendation that those in detention be provided with flu shots during flu season. According to media reports, last May, a 16-year-old Guatemalan boy died in immigration custody after being diagnosed with the flu. This is just cruel.

I appreciate the work of my colleagues, from Chairwoman LOWEY to Chairwomen ROYBAL-ALLARD to add strong oversight provisions to the bill and to end these harmful and ineffective immigration policies. Unfortunately, many of those efforts were not included.

We can do better which is why I will vote NO.

Mr. SOTO. Madam Speaker, I would like to acknowledge that Division A of H.R. 1158, Consolidated Appropriations Act, 2020's Joint Explanatory Statement to Division A, provided an increase to the Industrial Base Analysis and Sustainment Support program within the Research, Development, Test and Evaluation, Defense-Wide account. Specifically, a general program increase of $10,000,000, a $12,500,000 program increase for manufacturing engineering, a $20,000,000 program increase for machine and advanced manufacturing, and a $5,000,000 program increase for an interdisciplinary center for advanced manufacturing systems. These funds will allow the Department of Defense to leverage existing public-private-partnerships to establish a U.S. based manufacturing development platform for advanced microelectronic system integration, including anti-tamper heterogeneous integration and foundational copper-based silicon interposer technology.

The Industrial Base Analysis and Sustainment program is dedicated to ensuring that the Department of Defense is positioned to more effectively, and efficiently, address industrial base issues, and support the National Security Innovation Base. This includes the ability to proactively mitigate supply chain vulnerabilities within the global defense industrial base, and to cultivate next generation, emerging, defense manufacturing and technology sectors.

Continued U.S. global leadership in microelectronics depends on U.S. owned firms operating at the leading edge of advanced logic technologies and digital memories. The next generation of electronic devices will require significantly greater functional density, in other words, packing functional components together even more tightly than current technology allows. This requires technical leadership in microelectronics system integration, specifically in the microelectronics manufacturing areas of integrating heterogeneous devices, stacking memory, logic processing, sensors, communications, and packaging with security and advanced interconnect methods.

One of the foundational technologies required for advanced system integration is copper-based silicon interposer technology. This foundational interposer technology can enable almost any microelectronic dependent, or internet of things, system. However, advanced system integration capabilities have moved offshore due to cost, and there currently is no domestic sources that can reliably serve the low volumes of advanced microelectronics that the Department of Defense requires.

That is why there is a need for the Industrial Base Analysis and Sustainment Support Program to leverage existing public-private-partnerships to establish a U.S. based manufacturing development platform for advanced microelectronic system integration, including the foundational copperbased silicon interposer technology. This funding increase will help to accomplish this, and I thank the Chairwoman for the overall funding increases for the Industrial Base Analysis and Sustainment Support Program within the Research, Development, Test and Evaluation, Defense-Wide Account.

I want to express my gratitude and thank Chairwoman LOWEY, Chairman VISCLOSKEY, and the full Committee for all their work on the issue.

Mr. SOTO. Madam Speaker, I would like to acknowledge that Division A of H.R. 1158, Consolidated Appropriations Act, 2020's Joint Explanatory Statement to Division A, provided an increase to the Trusted and Assured Microelectronics program within the Research, Development, Test and Evaluation, Defense-Wide account. These funds will allow the Department of Defense to leverage existing public-private-partnerships to enable a U.S. based manufacturing development platform for advanced microelectronic system integration, including anti-tamper heterogeneous integration and foundational copper-based silicon interposer technology.

I want to express my gratitude to Chairwoman LOWEY, Chairman VISCLOSKEY, and the full Committee for the inclusion of this funding increase and for recognizing the urgent need to invest in trusted foundries, advanced microelectronics cybersecurity, and manufacturing capabilities that will translate our domestic research into fielded capabilities for the warfighter.

Ensuring quick, reliable, and secure access to leading-edge microelectronics is often a challenge. The changing global semiconductor industry and the increasing sophistication of U.S. adversaries require us to update our domestic microelectronics security framework.

Continued U.S. global leadership in microelectronics depends on U.S. owned firms operating at the leading edge of advanced logic technologies and digital memories. The next generation of electronic devices will require significantly greater functional density, in other words, packing functional components together even more tightly than current technology allows. This requires technical leadership in microelectronics system integration, specifically in the microelectronics manufacturing areas of integrating heterogeneous devices, stacking memory, logic processing, sensors, communications, and packaging with security and advanced interconnect methods.

One of the foundational technologies required for advanced system integration is copper-based silicon interposer technology—also known as heterogeneous integration. This foundational interposer technology can enable almost any microelectronic dependent, or internet of things, system. However, advanced system integration capabilities have moved offshore due to cost, and there currently is no domestic sources that can reliably serve the low volumes of advanced microelectronics that the Department of Defense requires. That's why this funding is so critical. We must invest in these advanced integrated capabilities so we can secure our microelectronic systems that our service members depend on.

Again, I support disruptive science and technology that enables a rapid modernization of our trusted and assured microelectronics systems. I thank my colleagues for their shared support.

Mr. SOTO. Madam Speaker, I would like to acknowledge that Division A of H.R. 1158, Consolidated Appropriations Act, 2020's Joint Explanatory Statement to Division A, provided an increase to the Defense-Wide Manufacturing Science and Technology Program within the Research, Development, Test and Evaluation, Defense-Wide account. Specifically, a general program increase of $20,000,000, a $5,000,000 program increase for manufacturing engineering programs, a $10,000,000 program increase for manufacturing innovation institutes, a $10,000,000 program increase for advanced manufacturing, and a $14,000,000 program increase for manufacturing cybersecurity.

I want to express my gratitude to Chairwoman LOWEY, Chairman VISCLOSKEY, and the full Committee for the inclusion of joint explanatory language to the bill noting the importance of obtaining advanced microelectronics manufacturing, in support of the defense industrial base, from trusted domestic suppliers.

Ensuring quick, reliable, and secure access to leading-edge microelectronics is often a challenge. The changing global semiconductor industry and the increasing sophistication of U.S. adversaries require us to update our domestic microelectronics security framework by establishing a comprehensive, public-private partnership-structured microelectronics cybersecurity center.

This center can provide the defense industrial base with access to manufacturing resources to support antitamper, devices, hardware security, and other evolving new concept technologies that support trusted and assured manufacturing, combined with advanced system integration and packaging technologies—known as heterogeneous integration.

The Defense-Wide Manufacturing Science and Technology Program enables the Department of Defense to advance reliable and secure state-of-the-art technologies. The funding increase provided in this legislation, along with the increased funding for advanced manufacturing, will facilitate America's innovative, secure, and domestic foundry operations and greatly contribute to our national defense through the establishment of a microelectronics cybersecurity center structured as a public-private partnership.

Again, I thank the Committee for recognizing the urgent need to invest in trusted foundries, advanced microelectronics cybersecurity, and manufacturing capabilities that will translate our domestic research into fielded capabilities for the warfighter. I would like to thank Chairwoman LOWEY, Chairman VISCLOSKEY, and the full Committee for all their work on the issue.

Mr. SOTO. Madam Speaker, I would like to acknowledge that Division A of H.R. 1158, Consolidated Appropriations Act, 2020's Joint Explanatory Statement to Division A, provided an increase to the Soldier Lethality Technology Program within the Research, Development, Test and Evaluation, Army account. Specifically, a general program increase of $5,000,000.

I want to express my gratitude to Chairwoman LOWEY, Chairman VISCLOSKEY, and the full Committee for the inclusion of this funding increase. These funds allow the Army Research Lab to conduct work on a number of important disruptive science and technology programs, including millimeter-wave imager sensor technology needed to improve situational awareness to our service men and women.

Ensuring access to low cost imager sensors to provide leap-ahead capability in urban combat and situational awareness will enable troops to move, communicate, protect, and sustain themselves better in any combat environment. Such sensors can be used in a reconnaissance role, with the ability to see inhabitants within building structures and provide significant situational insight within dense urban environments.

Again, I support the modernization of the U.S. Army and to support disruptive science and technology. I thank my colleagues for their shared support.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. All time for debate has expired.

Pursuant to House Resolution 765, the previous question is ordered.

The question is on the motion by the gentlewoman from New York (Mrs. LOWEY).

The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

Ms. GRANGER. Madam Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX, further proceedings on this question will be postponed.

NATIONAL LAW ENFORCEMENT MUSEUM COMMEMORATIVE COIN ACT

Mrs. LOWEY. Madam Speaker, pursuant to House Resolution 765, I call up the bill (H.R. 1865) to require the Secretary of the Treasury to mint a coin in commemoration of the opening of the National Law Enforcement Museum in the District of Columbia, and for other purposes, with the Senate amendment thereto, and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will designate the Senate amendment.

Senate amendment:

At the end, add the following:

SEC. 9. FINANCIAL ASSURANCES.

The Secretary shall take such actions as may be necessary to ensure that—
