

in the Congress of the United States. The rule that has been voted upon today and the Speaker's rulings have been in the precedent book of the House of Representatives for decades. It has never been in order for one Member to impugn the motivation of another Member. Speakers throughout the years, whether they be Democrat or Republican, have always enforced that rule in a uniform manner, and that is what happened today.

I do not see why my friends on the other side of the aisle object to that. They should not, because their Speakers enforced their rules just like our Speaker today has enforced the rules that we adopted in the first day of the session. Let us get down to legislation instead of talking about this.

THIS IS THE CENTER OF FREEDOM

(Mr. ROEMER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. ROEMER. Mr. Speaker, I believe in his very first speech to this body, in his eloquent words, Speaker GINGRICH talked about bringing a Russian delegation to the floor of the House, and he was very moved by the words of one of those Russians who said, "This is the center of freedom." This body, this seat, this podium, that podium shared by Democrats and Republicans alike, is the center of freedom.

We are free to debate, to dialogue and to discuss and, hopefully, in bipartisan ways, and I would say that all the American people watching today are moved, and not moved in the right direction about what has happened in this body today to limit that dialog and debate and discussion.

Justice Brandeis said, "The best antidote to offensive speech is more speech."

Let us continue to debate more speech in this body.

GUARANTEEING LOANS TO MEXICO IS IN OUR NATIONAL INTERESTS

(Mr. RICHARDSON asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. RICHARDSON. Mr. Speaker, the issue of guaranteeing loans for Mexico is not the S&L bailout. It is not NAFTA once again. It is not bailing out big businesses and corporations. Let us not politicize an issue where we have no choice but to act in a responsible and bipartisan manner.

The issue of guaranteeing loans to Mexico is in our national interests. Surely we are helping a friend, but it also means keeping a hundred one million jobs in exports. It means stopping an influx of additional illegal immigrants. It means stopping an erosion of Third World economies.

Mr. Speaker, let us not impose some conditions that preserve taxpayers exposure. Let us make sure there is an up-front fee and that we are paid in full. But again, Mr. Speaker, let us not politicize an issue that we need to act on in a bipartisan and responsible manner.

SPECIAL ORDERS

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. HOBSON). Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 4, 1995, and under a previous order of the House, the following Members will be recognized for 5 minutes each.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Kentucky [Mr. LEWIS] is recognized for 5 minutes.

[Mr. LEWIS of Kentucky addressed the House. His remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.]

FACTS AND THE NEW SPEAKER

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentlewoman from Colorado [Mrs. SCHROEDER] is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mrs. SCHROEDER. Mr. Speaker, I am delighted to be able to take the floor and review some of the things that I think have made this day so confusing to a lot of us.

I am a historian, as is the new Speaker, and the new Speaker wears that button with great pride. I always thought that historians were very, very proud about the fact that what we dealt with were facts. We try to deal as much in facts as possible, and I think today we all got a little confused as to what became factual, what became image. Were the image police working on the floor today? Were there new rules? Where were we going with all of this?

I know I was troubled when I read about yesterday's press conference when a reporter had asked the Speaker when he charged taxpayers' money had funded a PBS viewer opinion poll; the reporter asked, "Well, show us proof," and he said, "I don't have a clue, I don't have any proof."

Mr. Speaker, I ask my colleagues, "What does that mean? Shouldn't you have to have facts if you make those kinds of allegations?"

Many of us were troubled when the recommendation had been made by the new Speaker that Government economists who would not change statistics to their way of keeping statistics should be zeroed out. Well, again should we not be dealing in facts? And where do we go?

But then today I picked up the paper, and I am even more troubled. I feel like I am taking the floor to defend men and women. I read in today's paper some new facts that I certainly did not know about, and I would love to have the basis for these. In today's paper they take direct quotes from the Speaker's text that he is teaching on different campuses, and he is talking about men and women in combat. He says, "If combat means being in a ditch, then females have biological problems being in a ditch for 30 days because they get infections."

Well, I do not know of any medical status for this, and I would be very interested in having those facts because I know this will be a very debated issue as we come forward.

He says further, "When it comes to men, men are like little piggies. You drop them in a ditch, and they will wallow and roll around in it. It doesn't matter, you know."

Well, I am standing here defending my husband, my son, my uncles, my father. I mean I have seen them in ditches, but they do not roll around like little piggies, and I do not know anything in the facts that are based on that. So, that I found very troubling.

I read further in this lecture and found a statement that males do not do as well sitting as women, that women are maybe doing better with, as my colleagues know, laptop computers because supposedly he has some information that males get very, very frustrated sitting in a chair. I say to my colleagues, "That's kind of hard if you're Speaker, because they got to sit in a chair a lot." But they got frustrated sitting in a chair because we all know that males are, quote, biologically driven to go out and hunt giraffes.

Now I have been working in a male culture for a very long time, and I have not met the first one who wants to go out and hunt a giraffe. They can sit in chairs. They do not wiggle and so forth, and so I just must say I am very, very troubled by the new factual data that seems to be coming out of our new leader.

And then I must say I was terribly troubled by the proceedings that went on on the House floor today. I do not know exactly what to make of them. I thought what the gentlewoman from Florida was stating was a very factual statement about what she had read in the press, and she was pointing out that the publisher of the book, if they push the book sales, could make more money, which I think is factual. Royalties are based upon how many books are sold. The more books sold, the more money comes in in royalties.

How that becomes an innuendo or how that becomes some kind of illegal utterance on the floor is way beyond my understanding. I have heard much worse things said on the floor. And I must say I am a little shocked that the rules of this House are being used by the image police to try to clean this up.

Thank goodness for the newspapers, because the image police have not been able to get to the newspapers yet, and
