

and I appreciate the outstanding support your country has shown them.

The Korean people and the United States have been strong allies since the Korean War, and this visit is symbolic of the many years of friendship between our countries. A friendship that was forged on the battlefield is now a partnership based on freedom, and you are helping maintain the good relations between Korea and the United States. I am grateful for the important part you played in making the 50th Anniversary of the Korean War Commemoration a great success.

TRIBUTE TO INTELLIGENCE SPECIALIST SECOND CLASS PAUL EUDALY

HON. GARY G. MILLER

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, April 9, 2002

Mr. GARY MILLER of California. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to commend Intelligence Specialist Second Class Paul Eudaly.

This week, IS2 Eudaly completes a two year assignment at the Naval Strike and Air Warfare Center (NSAWC) at Naval Air Station (NAS) Fallon, Nevada. His next duty station assignment will be on the island of Diego Garcia located in the Indian Ocean. Since April 2000, IS2 Eudaly has served as the library night shift supervisor at NSAWC. He has performed his demanding duties in an exemplary and highly professional manner. Petty Officer Eudaly meticulously created the exercise QUIVER target/threat database, which was used to train over 500 naval personnel and 10 carrier air wings. He also volunteered to deploy onboard the USS CONSTELLATION for the Composite Training Unit Exercise, where he trained 30 additional intelligence personnel on QUIVER's application.

IS2 Eudaly has also served as the lead enlisted intelligence instructor at NAS Fallon for air wing personnel recovery and combat search and rescue events. As the only enlisted instructor during the annual joint exercise Desert Rescue IX, he provided quality support and accurate mission briefs for participants from 42 different commands. As the NSAWC Division Training Petty Officer, his mentoring and innovative training methods have resulted in 100 percent passing and a 73 percent advancement rate during the last examination cycle. He has been a great mentor to the junior enlisted personnel and has taken time to help many of the new sailors adjust to their duties at NSAWC.

Petty Officer Eudaly's professionalism and devotion to duty reflected credit upon himself and were in keeping with the highest traditions of the United States Naval Service.

Mr. Speaker, IS2 Eudaly is a model, sailor and the U.S. Navy needs more young men and women like him. Therefore, I ask that this 107th Congress join me in sincerely wishing IS2 Eudaly "fair winds and following seas" as he moves to his next duty assignment.

EMPLOYEE-LEASING ORGANIZATION ACT OF 2002

HON. PHILIP M. CRANE

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, April 9, 2002

Mr. CRANE. Mr. Speaker, I rise to announce introduction of the Employee-Leasing Organization Act of 2002. I'm pleased to note that two very distinguished members of the Ways and Means Committee, Congressman BILL JEFFERSON and Congressman RON LEWIS have agreed to join me in introducing this important legislation.

Too many small businesses lose valuable time each day attending to administrative headaches. Likewise, many of those same small businesses are unable to provide benefits to their employees due to their size. In recent years, the employee leasing industry has evolved to provide cost effective administrative payroll/tax services and health and retirement benefits to small businesses and their full-time employees. The bill I'm introducing will clarify the status of employee-leasing companies ability to provide these services.

I encourage all of my colleagues to join me in supporting this important legislation and taking a stand to help America's small business owners and employees.

INTRODUCTION OF THE WORKING TOWARD INDEPENDENCE ACT OF 2002

HON. HOWARD P. "BUCK" McKEON

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, April 9, 2002

Mr. McKEON. Mr. Speaker, today, I am pleased to introduce the "Working Toward Independence Act of 2002" to reauthorize the work-related provisions of the Temporary Assistance for Needy Families (TANF) block grant, and the Child Care and Development Block Grant (CCDBG).

This legislation will build upon the historic welfare reform law passed in 1996—a law that made a fundamental shift in policy by encouraging personal responsibility and promoting work. For the first time in the history of social welfare policy, benefits were tied to work. Because of the principle of "work first" and a purpose to help people better themselves, a whole new culture of personal responsibility was created within the program.

The results have been nothing short of dramatic. For example, there has been an historic decline in the welfare rolls; increases in employment for low-income single mothers, who comprise the population most likely to need assistance; and a sustained decline in child poverty. Even with the robust economy of the late 1990's, recent studies confirm that welfare reform is largely responsible for the declining caseload and increase in work. The law's promotion of work made the crucial difference in maximizing opportunities for welfare recipients.

But there is work remaining for us to do. Too many families receiving assistance are not engaged in activities that will lead to self-sufficiency. This year, Congress must build upon the success of the 1996 law by providing additional options for families on welfare to move into productive jobs, become self-reliant and obtain independence. I am proud to say that the bill that I am introducing today will do just that.

The legislation, based on the Administration's proposal, strengthens work rules to ensure that all families are engaged in a full week of work and other activities that will lead to self sufficiency. Families will be permitted to combine real work with education and training to help recipients advance in their jobs. In addition, states will need to have plans achieving the work related goals of TANF. States will be encouraged to coordinate their TANF work programs with the One-Stop Career Center system created through the Workforce Investment Act of 1998, so that former recipients will continue to have access to additional training resources.

However, we know that families cannot maintain employment without reliable, safe child care for their children. That is why this bill will also maintain the unprecedented commitment of federal support for child care by authorizing $2.1 billion annually for CCDBG for state child care programs. In addition, the bill improves the program by helping target funds set-aside for quality activities and encouraging states to address the cognitive needs of young children so that they are developmentally prepared to enter school. The bill also provides states maximum flexibility in developing child care programs and policies that best meet the needs of children and parents.

Finally, the bill will provide significant new waiver authority for states to design programs that improve services to needy families. This provision will encourage states to continue the experimentation at the state and local level that preceded the federal welfare reform action in 1996.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to support this important legislation that enhances opportunities for families to move up the economic ladder and access quality child care for their children.

BELIEVING THAT PEACE IN THE MIDDLE EAST IS INEVITABLE

HON. DARRELL E. ISSA

OF CALIFORNIA

Tuesday, April 9, 2002

Mr. ISSA. Mr. Speaker, I rise this evening, along with so many of my colleagues, to express my frustration and disgust with the situation that is currently boiling over in the Middle East. How long can we allow this bloodbath to continue? How long will we have to witness Israeli families blown apart by maniacal, suicidal murderers; Palestinian children lying dead on the street; young Israeli men and women buried alive in collapsed buildings; or Palestinian families huddling inside their homes, terrified to step out even to buy food? The latest news of more people—human beings with friends and family—who have been killed today is heartbreaking. The Israeli and Palestinian people are on a downward spiral, heading quickly toward that state of nature conceived by Thomas Hobbes, where Palestinian and Israeli children born into the world can expect only one thing: a life that is "nasty, brutish, and short." This situation is an outrage.
