

300 people. It provides a variety of social services to the people of Fairbanks, including a very successful regional alcoholism treatment center, which was appropriately named the "Ralph Perdue Center."

Annette Freiburger, executive director of the Fairbanks Native Association (FNA), is quoted in the News-Miner as follows, "Ralph has always served as a guide and inspiration for FNA. We recognized him as our FNA chief, the only chief we have in Fairbanks."

Ralph was also the devoted father of Karen Perdue Bettisworth, the distinguished former commissioner of the Alaska Department of Health and Social Services, and of Mona Perdue Jones. I extend to Dorothy, to Karen and to Mona, my deepest condolences and I join with the Fairbanks community in extending my appreciation to the late Chief Ralph Kriska Perdue for a job well done.●

RECOGNIZING LORRAINE JOHNSON, 2003 GEORGIA TEACHER OF THE YEAR

● Mr. MILLER. Mr. President, I would like to pay tribute to Lorraine Johnson, Georgia's 2003 Teacher of the Year and a finalist for National Teacher of the Year.

This Coweta County seventh grade teacher was selected as one of four finalists for the National Teacher of the Year award by a panel made up of members from 15 national education organizations. She attended a ceremony yesterday at the White House where the President recognized this great achievement, and I was honored to be part of the audience.

Ms. Johnson has been an outstanding educator for over 18 years and has taught seventh-grade English and language arts at Arnall Middle School in Newnan, GA, for the past 8 years. This past year, Ms. Johnson has been on a sabbatical to travel across the State of Georgia giving speeches and conducting workshops for her peers at other Georgia schools.

Ms. Johnson told a reporter recently that she hopes she can inspire other teachers to have pride in their profession, and I think she is achieving that goal. Though her commitment and dedication to teaching she has influenced hundreds of students and made Georgia and our entire country a better place.●

● Mr. CHAMBLISS. Mr. President, I rise today to pay a special tribute to Lorraine Johnson of Newnan, GA. Lorraine Johnson is an outstanding Georgia educator.

Lorraine Johnson was recently honored and recognized as one of four finalists by President George W. Bush at the White House for the National Teacher of the Year award.

Top notch teachers, like Lorraine Johnson, work day and night to make a difference to our Nation's young people as they prepare for their future.

These are our true American heroes in our communities, in our States and in our Nation. As the husband of a retired teacher who spent 35 years in the classroom, I know first hand the deep commitment, tough challenges, and endless efforts that go along with being a dedicated teacher. There is no doubt about it: Lorraine Johnson is a dedicated educator.

Lorraine Johnson teaches seventh grade language arts at Arnall Middle School in Newnan, GA. In my home State of Georgia, Lorraine's excellence is no secret. She was named Georgia's Teacher of the Year for 2003 for her remarkable efforts.

It was a real honor and a privilege to share in a special White House ceremony praising Lorraine's hard work and dedication. President George W. Bush, U.S. Secretary of Education Rodney Paige and many other lawmakers also commended Lorraine Johnson for her accomplishments.

Lorraine Johnson of Newnan, GA, is truly an outstanding educator. Not only is she an inspiration to Georgians, but she is an inspiration to all Americans.●

HONORING BOB PROFT

● Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. President, I ask that the following two tributes honoring the life of the late Bob Proft—a proud Minnesotan, respected author, and brave World War II veteran—be printed in the RECORD.

The tributes follow.

[From the Star Tribune, Jan. 1996]

A TRIBUTE TO HEROES (By Chuck Haga)

Fifty years ago, Congress awarded a Medal of Honor to Jimmy LaBelle, a 19-year-old Marine from Columbia Heights and one of Bob Proft's best friends.

Proft, a B-17 radio operator during the war, always wondered what his buddy had done to receive the country's highest military decoration, but he could find no lists, no compilation of citations.

So Proft published a book. Working out of his sign-painter's garage in Columbia Heights, he researched the history of the medal, compiled lists of the recipients and their citations—from the Civil War through Vietnam—and in 1980 assembled an encyclopedic document of more than 1,100 pages. With co-publisher Mitch DeMars of Columbia Heights, he brought out an updated edition last year.

Now anybody can look up Jimmy LaBelle's name and find out just what he did before he died on March 8, 1945, on Iwo Jima.

"I don't think there's anything else I've ever done that's given me more satisfaction," Proft said.

He is a fit man of 70, earnest in his cause but self-effacing when talking about his own military service. "I didn't do anything heroic whatsoever," he said.

But heroes matter to him.

"It bothers me that you can talk to young people and they don't even know what the Medal of Honor is," he said. "They know John Wayne. They know 'Rambo.' Real heroes are forgotten."

LaBelle was a soft-spoken, unassuming teenager, "Just one of the guys growing up in the Heights," Proft said. During high school, he worked at a hamburger joint called Virg's on Central Ave. He boxed in intramurals.

About 15 years after the war, Proft was painting a sign near Virg's. As he passed the hamburger joint, he thought about LaBelle and his Medal of Honor.

"It struck me that I didn't know anything about what he had done," he said.

He went to his local library, then to the Minneapolis Public Library. He wrote to government and military sources. A friend helped with the search, but they came up empty-handed.

In the late 1960s, the U.S. Government Printing Office compiled lists of recipients with their citations, he said, but that material was distributed only to federal depository libraries and couldn't be checked out.

Proft thought there should be something that could go in school libraries, something that young hamburger-flippers could stumble across.

"You can't sit and read this book like a novel," he said. "The citations would start blending together. But if you pick out a few citations at a time, they can really grip you."

The honor roll lists 47 Minnesotans, including Dale Wayrynen of McGregor, who received the medal posthumously for gallantry in Vietnam. Ten of the Minnesotans were natives of other countries: Germany, Austria, Norway, England, Ireland and Canada.

Proft's favorite is the citation for Nathaniel Gwynne, who was 15 and trying to talk his way into the 13th Ohio Cavalry on July 30, 1864, at Petersburg, Va. When the unit charged a Confederate position, Gwynne rode along.

The Yankees were forced to retreat, leaving their flag and battle standards. Young Gwynne charged back along, gathered up the colors and—despite having an arm almost shot off—brought them back.

"Somebody said, 'That young man should get the Medal of Honor,'" Proft said. "Somebody else said, 'Yes, but we'd better get him mustered first.'"

Since the medal was first presented in 1863, 3,420 have been awarded. Eighteen people received two medals.

An award requires at least two witnesses, and the action must involve "gallantry beyond the call of duty" and the risk of death.

In 1916, a congressional panel reviewed records of medals awarded to that point and rescinded 910, Proft said, because they didn't meet those standards.

Proft's book includes the citation for Alvin York, of course, the conscientious objector from Tennessee who became a World War I hero. Gary Cooper portrayed him in the film "Sgt. York."

And there are the stories of two living Minnesotans who received the Medal of Honor: Don Rudolph of Bovey, for actions in the Philippines during World II, and Mike Colalillo of Duluth, for actions against German forces near the end of the war in Europe.

Proft's labor was a good thing, said Rudolph, 74. "It gets it into the schools and the city libraries."

The Veterans of Foreign Wars post in Grand Rapids, Minn., bought 12 of the books for local schools and libraries, he said.

Rudolph has had his own copy of the book signed by about 200 recipients of the medal. Today, only 184 recipients are living.

"I've read the citations of everybody in the book," he said.

His own citation tells of his actions Feb. 5, when his platoon had been pinned down at Munoz, on Luzon: "While administering first aid on the battlefield, he observed enemy fire issuing from a nearby culvert. Crawling to the culvert with rifle and grenades, he killed
