

And I want these people to be able to tell these stories. I want them to know that somebody does care, and they are not just numbers, they are not just statistics that have no real meaning in the larger sense of the term. And I want to allow them the opportunity to tell their story here.

And it could be people who have lost their jobs as a result of the fact that our borders are porous, people who have come across and taken these jobs; maybe people who are underemployed, maybe people who work in the high-tech industry, but have been displaced by H1B visa workers, people who have come under that particular program and taken their jobs away from them because they will work for less.

All of these people are victims of our porous borders, and they have a story to tell, and they can go to a Website, Mr. Speaker. It is called victimsvoice.com, and they can tell that story on that Website. They can register for the event in September. And I encourage people, as I say, to do that, Mr. Speaker.

And I just want to say that this is a problem of, I think, a magnitude that we really have not understood, and that we desperately need to understand, and that we cannot allow cities and States throughout the Nation to begin developing their own immigration policies, begin ignoring the requirements of the Federal laws that we have in place, begin telling their law enforcement agencies that they will not cooperate with the Federal Enforcement Agency and the INS in the apprehension of criminal aliens. This is absolutely unconscionable, and something has got to happen. Some attention has got to be drawn to this problem.

So I want to thank the gentleman for allowing me to wrap up my remarks.
