Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, I now ask for their second reading and, in order to place the bills on the calendar under the provisions of rule XIV, I object to further proceeding on these matters en bloc.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The bills will be read the second time on the next legislative day.

ORDERS FOR FRIDAY, JULY 9, 2004

Mr. FRIST. I ask unanimous consent that when the Senate completes its business today, it adjourn until 9:30 a.m., on Friday, July 9. I further ask that following the prayer and pledge, the morning hour be deemed expired, the Journal of proceedings be approved to date, the time for the two leaders be reserved for their use later in the day, and the Senate then begin a period for morning business with the first 4 hours equally divided between the two leaders or their designees.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

PROGRAM

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, tomorrow the Senate will be in a period for morning business throughout the day. There will be no rollcall votes during tomorrow’s session, but Senators are encouraged to come to the floor to speak on the constitutional amendment regarding marriage, which we hope to consider next week.

A few moments ago we failed to invoke cloture on a very important bill, the class action bill, that we have spent the majority of this week debating. As I said at the outset, I had hoped we would be able to address this important bill, consider all relevant amendments, with no time limit on those relevant amendments, so we could pass a bill that is very important to the American people, to the economy, and to the concepts of equity and fairness. We were unsuccessful, in spite of our very best attempt to consider all relevant amendments and take up a bill that 62 people in this body support.

The problem was that Members from both sides of the aisle insisted on offering or wanting to offer and debate very complicated but, most importantly, unrelated amendments at this time. We set up a procedural process by which we could consider individual relevant amendments, but a decision was made, and it played out in the cloture vote today, that we would not proceed on this important bill at this juncture because some people thought we would need to include a lot of nongermane amendments. There were a lot of non-relevant amendments that appeared.

I am very hopeful, because I am a strong supporter of this bill as written, that we can come to some agreement given the fact there are a majority of people in this Senate who believe in this bill strongly, that we can come to some agreement in terms of time to consider this bill with relevant amendments debated so that we can serve the American people. That seems not to be now. Discussions hopefully will continue.

If we cannot do it in a reasonably short period of time and stay on relevant amendments, we just simply are not going to be able to do it in this session. We have somewhere around 30 legislative days remaining and we have a range of issues, some that were brought up on the floor today, issues such as homeland security and issues concerning the institution of marriage.

We have the Australia trade bill that hopefully we can consider very quickly in the near future. We have 13 appropriations bills, spending bills, that we must consider. There are 12 we need to consider in some way in the next several weeks. Then there are a number of judges who we must continue to move on. We have all of that in a period of about 30 days.

It means that as majority leader I need to insist on reasonable, disciplined, and regular order in the sense that when we go to a bill, we debate that bill, those issues, consider amendments that are relevant to that bill and not consider the broad range of issues that we naturally have as Senators. We have to have an orderly process. The orderly process led today, because of the insistence on these non-germane, nonrelevant amendments, to a point that we are not going to be able to consider class action reform now.

So I think that we will see predominantly tomorrow is debate on a very important issue to the American people and to the values of the United States of America, and that is the issue of marriage. We will likely see debate on that tomorrow, and that debate will continue on the constitutional amendment Monday and Tuesday. I would think somewhere during the middle of next week, probably Wednesday, we will have a vote, the nature of which I will be talking to the Democratic leader over the course of tomorrow morning.

So we had a good debate this week. I am very disappointed in the fact that the other side of the aisle—for the most part it was the other side of the aisle—insisted on having other amendments. I am disappointed we were unable to fully address class action reform. Hopefully, we can come back to it at some point in the future.

ADJOURNMENT UNTIL 9:30 TOMORROW

Mr. FRIST. If there is no further business to come before the Senate, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate stand in adjournment under the previous order.

There being no objection, the Senate, at 8:18 p.m., adjourned until Friday, July 9, 2004, at 9:30 a.m.
