

is clear that what most needs to be done is to change the fiscal policies of this Administration and Congress, and the budgets they establish, so that indeed more funds can be directed to this valuable institution. Voting for higher authorizations, if in fact votes for higher appropriations do not follow, means little.

This bill establishes a ceiling in the authorization, and provides that half of all increased appropriations would go into a Common Fund in the Office of the Director. If we followed this combination, it would mean 3 more years where appropriations for the institutes won't cover inflation. I regret that our dismal record of recent years of failing to provide sufficient appropriations for the NIH has made the authorization levels in this bill seem generous. They are not.

Certainly, there are proposals in this legislation that are worthy of support, and I will support this bill moving forward. Mr. BARTON has worked hard to moderate his original proposal, and he has secured support from the community as a result of his efforts.

I do urge the Senate, however, as they consider this bill, to pay particular attention to provisions which allow the Administration to abolish institutes and offices established by law without the consent of the Congress. The bill also establishes a Scientific Management Review Board, with similar powers to change the organization of the NIH with no Congressional involvement. Although I recognize that the Secretary has authority to make these kinds of changes under current law, no Secretary has ever used it. So these provisions breathe life into an authority that has long lain dormant. In my view, it is not a wise move for the Congress to affirm and expand the authority of the Administration to undo the actions of the Congress. We should not put the Office of Women's Health, or the Office of AIDS Research, or the Office of Rare Diseases, at risk. These were established by the Congress because the Executive Branch did not recognize their need.

I will support the bill moving forward. And I look forward to its continued improvement.

Mrs. CHRISTENSEN. Mr. Speaker, I want to join my colleagues in applauding Chairman BARTON and Ranking Member DINGELL for their leadership on health matters and for ensuring that we could pass the reauthorization of NIH before we go home. I also commend my CBC colleague and friend, BOBBY RUSH, for leading the effort to preserve the integrity of the National Center for Minority Health Disparity Research.

I am pleased that the reauthorization of NIH will allow the nation's premiere research centers and institutes to continue to play a critically important role advancing efforts to beat HIV/AIDS, diabetes, and cancer, as well as racial and ethnic health disparities among men, women and children in this country.

As a physician, I know—first hand—how critically important and valuable sound research is to the medical and health care community. As the Chair of the CBC Health Braintrust, I know that racial and ethnic health disparities have and continue to leave millions of Americans in poorer health and more likely to die from preventable conditions.

Mr. Speaker, I also know that strategies to reduce and ultimately eliminate racial and ethnic disparities in chronic and acute conditions will never be successful without strong biomedical and bio-behavioral research—the very research the Center was created to lead, coordinate support and assess at NIH.

This center is the product of the hard work of many individuals in and out of Congress and embodies the promise of modern and future medicine to close the gaps in health care experienced by people of color and improve the health of all Americans as we also contribute to resolving some of the world's pressing health challenges.

It is my hope that as we reform the NIH and place more authority in the office of Director that the integrity of the scientific process will continue to be respected and protected from political and ideological interference. I urge my colleagues to support the adoption of H.R. 6164.

Mr. BURGESS. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.
