Mr. DURBIN. I ask unanimous consent that the Foreign Relations Committee be discharged from further consideration of S. Con. Res. 4 and the Senate proceed to its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The clerk will report the concurrent resolution by title.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

A concurrent resolution (S. Con. Res. 4) calling on the President and the allies of the United States to raise the case of Robert Levinson with officials of the Government of Iran at every level and opportunity, and urging officials of the Government of Iran to fulfill their promises of assistance to the family of Robert Levinson and to share information on the investigation into the disappearance of Robert Levinson with the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the concurrent resolution.

Mr. NELSON of Florida. Mr. President, exactly two years ago today, Bob Levinson went missing while on a business trip to Kish Island, Iran. Bob Levinson checked out of his hotel on March 9, 2007, and got in a taxi cab to head to the airport.

But he never checked in for his flight. The authorities in Dubai and surrounding countries have verified that Mr. Levinson never arrived on any flight from Iran or passed through passport control.

I would like to recognize that Bob Levinson's wife Christine Levinson is in the Senate today with her sister Suzi Halpin.

Many of my fellow Senators and their staffs have met with Christine and cosponsored the resolution we are aiming to pass today. She is a tireless advocate of her husband's case and I thank her and her sister for coming to Washington on this sad, but important day.

So what happened to Bob Levinson? We still do not know, although a man named David Belfield, an American fugitive from justice residing in Iran, and one of the last people to see Bob Levinson on Kish Island before his disappearance, has claimed that the Government of Iran imprisoned Mr. Levinson.

Mr. Belfield himself was detained by Iranian security services after meeting Bob Levinson at the hotel on March 8, 2007, the night before Mr. Levinson vanished.

The Iranians claim they do not know what happened to Bob Levinson, but I believe they are not being completely forthcoming. They promised in December 2007 that they would share the results of their investigation into Bob Levinson's case with his family. President Ahmadinejad stated in July 2008 that Iranian authorities would cooperate with the FBI. We are still waiting for the promised assistance.

Meanwhile, Christine and the rest of the Levinson family pray every day for Bob's return. The past 2 years have been incredibly hard on the family.

In the intervening time, Bob Levinson has missed graduations and report cards and sports events. He has missed the first steps of his grandson Ryan, and the birth of his granddaughter Grace Olivia.

I want to recognize the great personal courage Christine has shown in travelling to Iran in December 2007 to seek answers from the Iranians on what happened to her husband.

She has steadfastly pursued this case for 2 years now, giving press interviews to publicize Bob's plight and seek leads on the case, engaging the Iranian Mission to the U.N., talking to Swiss diplomats, speaking at rallies, making trips to Washington to meet with Members of Congress and officials at the White House, the State Department and the FBI.

At the same time, she also had to juggle all her other duties as a mother of seven and grandmother of two. I do
